

TROOPS REACH LOUISIANA FEUD SCENE

ARREST 22 IN MILLION NAVY BASE THEFTS

Detectives Stole To Win Confidence Of Real Thieves
In New York Base

By Associated Press
New York — Twenty-two civilian employees at the Brooklyn navy base were arrested Wednesday on indictments returned several months ago by a federal grand jury charging that government property to the value of more than $1,000,000 had been stolen since the war.

The arrests were made by agents of the department of justice.

The grand jurors indicted 22 men after its investigation of the alleged wholesale thefts which the authorities said included clothing, oil and various other materials used at the navy base. The twenty-third man under indictment was not found Wednesday.

Navy intelligence officers undertook to find out the cause for the discrepancies because of the inventories and the stock supposed to be on hand but the thieves were too cunning for the regular naval detective force, the members of which were apparently well known to those who were doing the stealing.

Men were put into the warehouses as checkers, laborers, watchmen and bookkeepers. These detectives found themselves watched narrowly until they took advantage of opportunities obviously put in their way of stealing small articles such as wrist watches and marine glasses. They learned that government property was being stolen by the truckload, including great boxes of clothing, paint, crates of glass and commercial alcohol.

PLAN SIX MONTHS' CREDIT ON CROPS

By Associated Press
Washington — Bankers' acceptance of six months maturity, drawn by growers of staple agricultural products or cooperative marketing associations, are eligible for purchase or rediscout by the federal reserve banks under a ruling promulgated Wednesday by the Federal Reserve board as a step in the direction of longer term credits for agriculture.

Officials declared the decision which makes the agricultural paper eligible for rediscout for six months instead of three, "should be of material assistance to cooperative marketing associations in financing the orderly marketing of crops."

Acceptances of six months have been asked for by many agricultural organizations and the longer period is believed by officials to more nearly accord with the turn over period required by the farmers to market crops for whose production he has borrowed money.

REID'S CONDITION IS REPORTED AS BETTER

Los Angeles — Improvement was reported Wednesday in the condition of Wallace Reid, motion picture actor, whose recent breakdown, according to relatives, followed his quitting the use of drugs and liquor. The latest report issued from his bedside in a Hollywood sanitarium stated his temperature and respiration were normal and his pulse down to 100.

If I Sharpen Knives—

sharpen knives and scissors than to replace them with new.
Of course I couldn't talk to

Arbuckle Is Given Chance To Make Good

Los Angeles — Will H. Hays, chairman of the motion picture industries, said Wednesday that Roscoe "Patty" Arbuckle might have his chance to "come back" in the motion pictures.

Joseph Schenck producer, said:
"Roscoe will go to work for me. I am glad to help give him his chance."

Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation said:
"We are sure Arbuckle will prove worthy of the trust."

Arbuckle
has been given to the matter of releasing the pictures already made and we have no plans in this connection," Roscoe Arbuckle said.

"I want to say that I am grateful to all those who are helping me and I will prove myself worthy of their faith in me."

The statement of the case was given out from the headquarters of Mr.
Hays. It said:
"Roscoe Arbuckle is to have another chance to go to work and make good if he can. After the first of the year he will be given this new opportunity. He has gone straight since he was barred from the films last April and he has pledged his word that he will keep on going straight."

Arbuckle's ten years in motion pictures was stopped in September 1921, when he was arrested and charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Virginia Rappe. The motion picture comedian was held at his rooms in the hotel St. Francis of San Francisco, Labor Day 1921 and Miss Rappe was one of the guests. She died ten days later from an internal injury, according to testimony at his trial. He was tried three times, the juries in the first two disagreed and in the third a verdict of acquittal was returned.

Mr. Hays ordered Arbuckle's pictures withdrawn and his contract with producers cancelled. Arbuckle is married to Miss Minnie Durfee.

SEEKS SMALL LOAN FOR GERMANY LATER

When Conditions Improve Flotation Will Be Possible, Says Lamont

New York — An address by Thomas
W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., before the committee of foreign relations Tuesday night, in which he discussed prospects of a loan to Germany, was regarded Wednesday as one of the most significant statements made on the question.

The American people have no intention of making a loan to Germany, he said, because she is not in any position at the present time to dis-burse our people with confidence to buy its bonds.

At the same time Mr. Lamont stated conditions under which he believed a German loan might be floated in this country at some future time, not a large loan, but enough to enable Germany "to get over the hill."

These conditions were, he said, the settlement of reparations problem and the fixing of a definite sum so that Germany would be aware of her obligation.

Mr. Lamont also took occasion to deny that the state department had sent the German ambassador to confer with Mr. Morgan here recently. He further expressed his opinion that the people of this country have the utmost sympathy for France and that they would be glad to lend money to her "on a large scale."

MORGAN BIDS FOR ANOTHER LOAN PARLEY

Committee Suggests Invitation In Same Statement Refusing Immediate Relief

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1922 By The Post Pub. Co.
Washington — J. P. Morgan's statement that he told the German ambassador that prospects of a loan from international bankers were no better today than they were last June has cleared the air of rumors and fantastic theories of American aid to Europe.

Mr. Morgan said what the department of state was unable to say in answer to the unfounded fears of the "irreconcilables" and others who believed some radical departure in American policy was forthcoming. But Mr. Morgan's announcement really has another significance. It means that he has told France that aid from the allied bankers cannot be given unless the program drawn up by the international bankers' committee last June is revived.

KEY TO FUTURE
The key to the future lies in the carefully worded document issued by Mr. Morgan and his colleagues.
Will France permit her member of the reparations commission to vote with the majority and issue a unanimous invitation to a bankers' committee again to devise ways and means of assisting the general economic situation in Europe.

The bankers in June incurred the disfavor of the French by pointing out the obvious though unwelcome fact that until there was some moderation on the part of France toward the Versailles treaty and some limitation of Germany's liability was made consistent with the opinion of investors throughout the Allied world it was hopeless to talk loan.

The United States government is not a party to these informal negotiations of the bankers. Mr. Morgan went abroad as a private citizen and with no commission official or unofficial from the American government.
He was invited to sit with the international bankers' committee and render advice to the reparations commission. A dispute arose as to the text of the invitation to the bankers, the English and French wording being somewhat at variance. Anyway, the French saw the bankers committee as a body attempting to usurp the functions of the reparations commission and as endeavoring to decrease Germany's reparation liability. Under such cir-

GIRL SENTENCES MAN SHE WED TO SERVE 6 MONTHS

Chicago — "A year is a long time, judge. I guess six months is enough."
This spoke Miss Rose Musser, 22, when Judge Morgan in the Court of Domestic Relations asked her to sentence Porter S. Houser, her "Sheik." She had Houser arrested on charges of desertion robbery, and conspiracy.

Houser, according to the testimony married Miss Musser several months ago after a whirlwind courtship and two weeks later he disappeared with her savings and most of her clothing.
She said she also learned that he had several other wives.

Judge Morgan added a fine of $100 to Miss Musser's six months' decision.

Tiger Home; Wishes U.S. Merry Yule

By Associated Press
Havre, France — Georges Clemenceau arrived home from his American pilgrimage Wednesday in a typically hilarious mood, but apparently suffering from fatigue.

The former premier had a very stormy voyage.

"I hope for good results from my trip to the United States," said M.
Clemenceau to the Associated Press.
"However, let the people decide. I put my thoughts fully before them and they have got sense enough to judge. It was apparent that there was a vast amount of interest in me personally, for which I am most grateful. It is a rare compliment."

Later he added, "Maybe it is too soon, but it is my best opportunity.
Say please, to your friends in the United States. My first thought on sight of France was that I was glad to be home; second that I was sorry
I had left the United States. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from an old friend."

Asked what he thought of the reparations question and also the possible occupation of the Ruhr, the "Tiger" said:
"I fear for Germany strikes there in case of occupation."

Regarding a suggestion that he visit South America, M. Clemenceau said, "I am sorry but not now at any rate, possibly in my next life."

TELLS OF HERRIN MINE RIOT BATTLE

Guards And Men Exchanged Shots Says Witness In Trial
Of Union Men

Marion, Ill. — Robert Officer, University of Pennsylvania graduate and survivor of the Herrin riots in which 20 nonunion miners were killed, Wednesday faced another period on the witness stand subject to additional cross examination by attorneys defending five men on trial for murder in connection with slayings.

Officer, employed as a bookkeeper at the strip mine where the principal riot occurred was on the stand most of Tuesday, describing the mob's attack on the mine. He told of the surrender of the mine defenders and the subsequent deaths of 14 of the 48 men when they were lined up by a barbed wire fence and fired upon.

RETURNED FIRE
On cross examination Officer testified he was at present employed in Kentucky as a mine official by W. J.
Lester, who owned the strip mine at the time of the riots. The witness said there were about 20 armed guards at the pit and arms and ammunition had been dealt out and fire of the mob returned when the mine was attacked.

WASHINGTON NEWS —In Brief—

DELAY GREEN BILL

Washington — House Republican lead-

U. S. OPPOSES ALLIED PLAN FOR STRAITS

Childs Objects To Commission Control—Wants Absolute Freedom

Lausanne — Ambassador Childs
Tuesday night, had a long conversation with Ismet Pasha about the strait problem which Lord Curzon declared must be disposed of immen-ately by the Lausanne conference.

It has become known that the American observers at the conference believe that an international control commission associated with the League of Nations as suggested in the Allied plan for supervision of the Dardanelles, is unnecessary. In other words the Americans believe that freedom of the straits should be an actual freedom guaranteed by a treaty between Turkey and the other powers, and that it should not be a freedom limited by an international commission.

The American observers have go-far on the conference floor limited themselves to statements of the most general terms on the Dardanelles question, without suggesting as to how the straits should be kept open to the commerce of the world and to the fleets of the powers.

Good Fellows, You Must Hurry To Get In Your Donations

Responsibility For Suffering Among The Poor Will Rest On Persons Who Can Help Them
But Refuse To Do So

"Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye

That's the message of the Saviour, the greatest Good Fellow that ever lived, to the Good Fellows of the world. No time is more appropriate for carrying out this great Good Fellow's wishes than at this Christmas time, when good will toward all humanity should fill the heart of every man.

This is not intended to be a sermon but the quotation from the Prince of Good Fellows is used here to show that the reward for helping the "least of these" is of much more consequence than the mere happiness of seeing your own family circle happy.

A Good Fellow never goes back on his promise and you have the promise from the most of all Good Fellows that what you do for unfortunates will not be forgotten.

DAUGHERTY HEARING DRAWING NEAR END

Only Further Evidence By Woodruff Would Continue Session

Washington — Unless Representative Woodruff, Michigan, was prepared to lay before the house judiciary committee Wednesday before the special examination of certain department of justice documents, evidence of a nature to occasion further hearings in connection with the impeachment charges brought against Attorney General Daugherty, an early windup of the proceedings appeared certain.

Opportunity to examine certain papers in the department relating to alleged war frauds was granted Mr.
Woodruff at his request on appearing before the committee Tuesday as a witness called on its own initiative after the withdrawal of Representative Koller, Republican, Minnesota, from prosecution of his impeachment charges against the attorney general.

The activities of the government in past investigations of the Wright Martin contract were aired in some detail at the hearing, however, the case holding the center of the stage during most of the morning session of the committee.

Representative Woodruff, appearing in connection with charges made regarding war frauds prosecution, declared he was prepared to show that a year ago Guy D. Goff, then assistant attorney general, inquired into the airplane company's contract and recommended action.

QUESTION BAKER IN WAR FRAUDS

By Associated Press
Washington — Newton D. Baker who was secretary of war in President Wilson's war time cabinet, appeared Wednesday before the special federal grand jury which is in session here investigating war frauds.

The purpose for which Mr. Baker went before the grand jury was not revealed but it is known that recently the investigation has centered about alleged irregularities in the building of army cantonments. Several civil suits to recover millions of dollars from contractors already have been filed and department of justice officials have announced that criminal action also would be sought.

Several other former officials of the government have been before the jury which Tuesday questioned B. M.
Baruch who was chairman of the war industries board.

Bleak Island Poor Shelter For Marooned

By Associated Press
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—A week may elapse before all of the survivors of the ill-fated tug Reliance are able to travel to their homes so intense was their suffering from cold and hunger after their tiny craft was disabled and abandoned at the Bleak Islands. It was said here Wednesday that 20 persons who reached here Tuesday night are under the care of physicians and will remain at a hospital and hotels until they have fully recovered. Walter Longacre, is in a serious condition with both hands and both feet frozen.

With the arrival of these survivors the 26 on board the Reliance when she was disabled have been accounted for. Seven reached the Soo Sunday. Two are in a Canadian lumber camp. Three are aboard the tug Reliance which is engaged in taking off. Superior light keepers for the winter are recuperating here and four lost their lives.

Tuesday's arrivals suffered great hardships before they were found Monday on one of the Bleak Islands near the Canadian shore.

The first day after the wreck brought the death of three of their companions (Capt. John McPherson, Fred Regan and Gus Johns) who were swept overboard as they tried to launch a life boat. One of the boats got away safely. It carried the eight men and one woman who reached the mainland last week.

The following day it became apparent the Reliance could not long withstand the pounding of high seas and a raft was constructed of barrel staves and a sturdy tarp from the tug. The storm still raged so fiercely that little hope of landing on the reef was entertained until William Gowen, a German swim 75 yards to island through the icy water and stretched a line along which the raft was pulled. It was a perilous trip over the 75 yards and only three persons could board the raft at a time. The raft was required for the party to disembark.

DANGER ON LAND
On land they still faced dangers as great as those on the raging waters of Superior. The temperature was below zero, there was no shelter and only meager food supplies. Continued cold weather might block efforts of rescue craft to reach them until late. But they waited for five days on a few cans of meat, two seas of bread cake and scraps of water soaked cake brought from the tug. A fire in the open and a hot or wrapped of brush afforded their only protection from the storm that continued during their entire stay on the island.

FACULTY DEBATING NEW CLASS PLANS

Addition Of Summer Session At College Opens Question Of Proper Revision

Whether the curriculum of Lawrence college under the newly adopted quarter system shall be a hard and fast four-hour program for every class or a combination of three and five hour classes is the question which is being hotly debated by the faculty of Lawrence college. The faculty meeting which took place on Monday was the scene of many arguments by the followers of each type. The discussion will be continued at a meeting on Thursday afternoon.

The faculty approved the proposed plan of the trustees of running a four quarter year with a summer session. The next step was to revise courses in each department to meet the quarter of 12 weeks rather than the semester of 18 weeks. This means that classes which have met three times a week during the semester would have to meet four times a week during the quarter in order to get the 48 recitation periods for the course. Two hour classes in the semester plan would naturally be three hours in the quarter plan. All this revision makes a great deal of work for the professors some of whom have had practically the same program for years.

The straight four hour plan would make all the classes meet once a day for four days each week regardless of the present number of hours devoted to the subject. Some of the professors claim that this plan would make the easier courses diffuse, while it would make the more extensive ones too concentrated. The idea of the quarter system is to concentrate study on fewer subjects for a shorter time. The summer school session will be held for the first time in 1923, while the four-quarter system will be installed in the fall of 1923.

Even the stoniest of hearts must be touched by the appeal of children and their appeals are most potent at Christmas time when they compare their sorry lot with the children of the comfortably situated about them. Their own distress is made more acute by the comparison. And the saddest part of it all is that they can do nothing to help themselves. They are too small, too weak, too poor to be clothed in work, their only hope is a Good Fellow. The prospect of life is sad enough starting out with famished, tired and chilled minds with out adding to their misery by forgetting them at Christmas time.

There should be any necessity of praying this daily appeal to the hearts of the good people of this city. Enough has been said of the need which exists the misery that is here of the suffering that can be alleviated to convince the most skeptical that this is a worthy cause. Writing these daily letters taking care of Good Fellow club accounts and answering hundreds of questions about destitute families every day isn't an easy task and would not be undertaken if the need for the work was not urgent. Every reader of the Post-Crescent must be aware of the situation here. There can be no excuse for not knowing conditions in our poor families.

If on Christmas day there are any families in Appleton who have not been given a least a little to brighten the lives of our poor the responsibility will be on the readers of this newspaper who know of their condition and having the means to help neglect to do so. For this kind of a person Christmas cannot be happy. The vision of suffering which they failed to alleviate must float before them to make them miserable.

On the other hand if you know that somewhere in Appleton there is a family made happy by your generosity your own happiness must be greater. The satisfaction of having done well will be with you. You will have that pleasurable feeling of being a Good Fellow.

Fill out the coupon printed on this page and hurry it to the Good Fellow editor of the Post-Crescent. The time is short. You will have to hurry. BE A GOOD FELLOW

POSTPONE HEARING ON ZONING TO NEXT YEAR

No further hearings have been set by the ordinance committee of the Appleton common council in connection with the proposed zoning ordinance.

Belgium Honors Hoover

TELLS CITY NOT TO REFUND BANK TAX

Tax Commission Says Court Or Legislature Will Decide Stock Dilemma

City administrations throughout Wisconsin have been advised by the state tax commission to keep the assessment against the capital stock of national banks upon the tax rolls and not to refund back taxes until a definite decision on the matter has been made either by the state supreme court or by legislative enactment in congress.

In Appleton the national banks have not requested the common council either for a modification of the basis of assessment or for refund of back taxes. It has, however, been unofficially stated that the banks desire to pay their just taxes but desire to pay them on a basis of income tax returns.

Although the United States supreme court had ruled that the present method of taxing capital of national banks is illegal, it is possible, the tax commission states, that the right of the state may yet be upheld. The letter reads in part as follows:

"Neither the attorney general nor the supreme court of this state has formally passed upon the question, as far as we are advised. Both the supreme court of New York and the appellate division thereof have recently affirmed an assessment of national bank stock under conditions similar to those prevailing in Wisconsin. The case, however, is subject to further appeal and the outcome cannot be foretold with certainty. Whatever the outcome of litigation may be, either in this state or New York, we do not expect the present condition to continue. Either congress or our own legislature can readily remedy the situation, and we expect one or the other to do it."

ANTI-PEDDLER LAW UP FOR DISCUSSION

Enactment of an ordinance licensing transient merchants and peddlers so as to prevent unloading of inferior goods on consumers here will be considered by directors of the chamber of commerce at the biweekly dinner in the Sherman house Thursday evening.

Secretary Hugh G. Corbett has obtained copies of ordinances in 13 Wisconsin cities regulating this type of business and will submit them at the meeting. They show Appleton to be the only place that does not charge a daily fee for the privilege of doing business. Reports are expected from nine other cities.

prominent physician and then mayor of the Mer Rouge sought to clean up Mer Rouge of lawlessness. Mayor McKern, it is claimed aligned himself with one faction and served notice on a number of alleged lawbreakers that he and his officials proposed to enforce the law. McKern received warnings by letter that if he did not cease, he would be assassinated. Later he was called from his home at midnight, ostensibly to go to a sick patient, and his automobile was riddled with bullets but he escaped. Friends advised McKern to leave the community, and he did so. He is now taking a postgraduate course at Johns Hopkins university Baltimore.

WANT MAN WHO KILLED FOR THEFT OF FLOWER

Sheriffs throughout the state have been notified that a $500 reward will be paid to the persons apprehending John Hallos of Council Bluffs, Ia., who is charged with shooting a man for plucking a flower out of his garden. The man who was shot, Cecil Norris, died a month later. Hallos disappeared immediately after Norris' death. He is described as being tall, dark and a neat dresser and has been known to wear a small mustache.

"Y" BLACKHAWKS DEFEAT SEYMOUR BASKETBALLERS

The Y. M. C. A. Blackhaws defeated the Seymour Grade school basketball team in a hot contest Tuesday night in Bushey's gymnasium. The score was 8 to 5.

The Appleton lineup was composed of Lawrence Christian, center; Captain Claude Thompson and Clarence Christian, guards; Elborn Larson and Albert Selig, forwards.

Lawrence Christian proved a wizard in getting points. He tallied five and Kenneth Bushey, who subbed for Clarence Christian, got the other field goal. For the visitors Louis Becker, captain, probably played the best game. A return contest will be held in Seymour next week.

SPIED TODAY

A really splendid picture, "I Am The Law," opens a three day engagement at the Elito theatre Tuesday night. The Post-Crescent invites its readers to win free tickets to this attraction by contributing to "I Spied Today."

Please remember to include all necessary details in your items. They cannot be accepted unless they are specific enough to identify the place and time at least. In describing events in which automobiles figure, obtain the license number of the cars if it is possible. The Post-Crescent wants to make this section more and more interesting and must call upon its readers to help.

TRUCK BOOSTS WAGON

One of Hettlinger's coal wagons got an unusual boost back of Appleton High school. The team attached to the wagon was trying in vain to pull it up the incline behind the school. A truck driver coming along at that time, backed into the wagon and pushed it up the hill. The wagon driver was profuse in his thanks to the truck driver.

DRUG STORE JANES

Last Sunday evening two flappers who evidently had indulged quite freely in cosmetics were parading up and down College-ave. A bunch of young boys passing them looked them over, giggled, and one of them remarked, "I'll bet my last dime that those Janes work in a drug store."

THOUGHT IT WAS SANTA CLAUS

Last night, while passing the Stuebaker garage, I noticed a small boy trying to attract the attention of Santa Claus, who was sitting at the steering wheel of a large car.

As the boy was rapping at the window and yelling at him, two girls came along and told him that he was talking to a stuffed dummy all the time. This caused him to scream and he went away crying bitterly.

BUT WHICH IS WHICH?

Saturday morning on Spencer-st I saw a horse with a light delivery sleigh walk across the ditch, causing the sleigh to tip over and to spill all the boxes of groceries with it. When the boy came I told him what happened. He stood there looking at it nearly crying. I offered him my assistance, but he said: "That's all right but I don't know which is which now."

WHERE DID THEY GET IT?

Late this afternoon about 5:15 as I was coming down West College-ave, I spied a young couple, just ahead of me, hanging on to one another for dear life, and careening from one side of the walk to the other. They had evidently imbibed too freely and the odor of alcohol was noticeable ten feet behind them.

When they came to Cherry-st they started north along the car track but had not proceeded far when the girl took a tumble and with much difficulty was finally brought to her feet again by her companion.

Even in their maudlin condition they had sense enough to keep off the avenue but not off the car track.

A BOB HOPPING ACCIDENT

As I was out riding in a sleigh Monday afternoon I spied on the avenue in front of J. C. Penney's store about 2:30 a boy trying to hop a bob. As he was going to hop, a taller and much larger boy came along, gave him a push which landed him under the runner. He must have sprained or broken his ankle for he could not walk after the accident.

NOT USED TO "DINKIES"

While riding on a city line street car to the Junction last Friday at 1:15 p. m. I spied a woman not very well acquainted with Appleton's modern "dinky." She got up to ring the bell but instead pulled the rope that registered a fare. The conductor-motorman looked up at her and said, "Hey there, you pulled the wrong rope."

The man then set the indicator on the dial between two numbers, thus securing protection from another such disastrous event.

CLEAR THE TRACK

The sidewalk on Pearl-st hill was turned into a speed way for coasting on Saturday afternoon. Two small boys and their sleds went up and down the hill several times. When they were ready to start down they would shout to the pedestrians to get out of the way and then speed ahead.

SANATORIUM PATIENTS GO HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

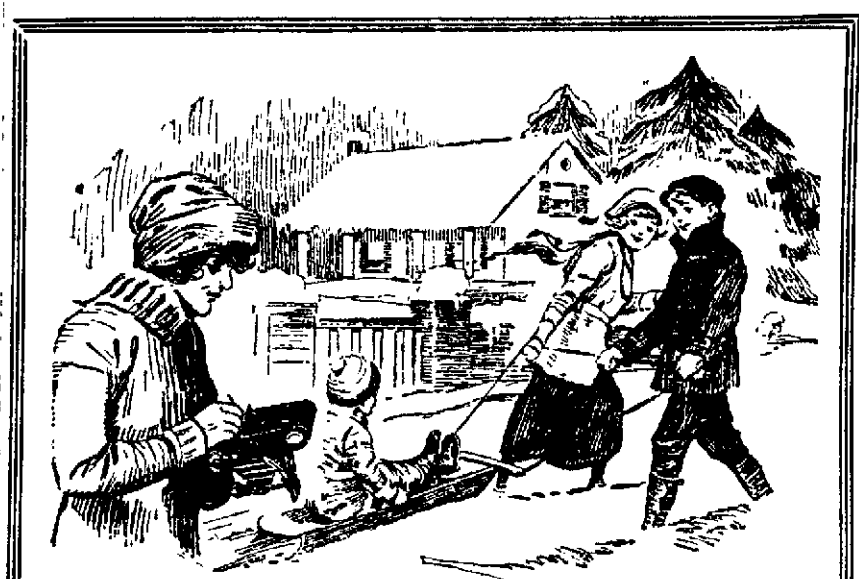

Twenty-five families in the county will have a glorious Christmas when members of their households who are recuperating at Riverview sanatorium will spend the holiday at home. The Christmas program at the sanatorium will take place on Friday and the patients who are able then will be allowed to go home. A special Christmas dinner will be prepared for those who remain over the holidays. Many people send remembrances to the patients just before the holidays.

MAIL CONGESTION SLOWS DOWN PASSENGER TRAINS

Holiday congestion is beginning to be felt on the railroads. Trains on the Chicago & Northwestern railway arrived from one to three hours late Tuesday. Delivery of mails from the postoffice was delayed as a result. The delayed mails add to the general Christmas congestion there.

Inspect School

A. A. Thompson of Madison, state inspector of graded schools, is in the county inspecting schools for a few days. Schools at Cicero and Dale are being visited. Superintendent Florence S. Jenkins and A. L. Collar, supervising teacher, are accompanying Mr. Thompson.

CHRISTMAS PEACE IN IRELAND

As Christmas approaches, there is a prospect of peace in Ireland. The Free Staters and Republicans in South Ireland are more disposed to get together. It is hinted that the rebels against the new government might consent to quit fighting if they were not obliged to surrender their arms. A compromise is possible; and a compromise is the hope of Ireland.

Likewise there are indications of a better understanding between north and south Ireland. The Duke of Abercorn, new governor-general of Ulster, in his opening speech to the parliament at Belfast, expressed a hope that the executives of northern Ireland and the Free State—of protestant Ireland and catholic Ireland—might meet soon and settle in friendly fashion the vital questions affecting both areas.

It is an opportune time. If ever "peace on earth, good will to men" was needed, it is needed now. May Ireland set the rest of Europe a good example.

WITHOUT REGULATION

It is prophesied from Washington that with the coming of the new congress whatever of carrying through his plan to substitute for the Railroad Labor board a wage section of the interstate commerce commission. Congress, which is always more frightened of a strongly organized and active little minority than of broad but unfocused public sentiment, is already counted as opposed.

In order to understand what such a failure would mean it is first desirable to imagine both parties without any regulation whatever—that is, the railroads setting whatever rates they please and the employees striking when they like. Plainly that situation would be entirely fair to each. The railroads would have the free alternative of fighting a strike though in the interest of low wages and low rates which would permit large traffic and consequent profits, or of giving in to the strikers and raising their rates to cover the increased wages. The strikers would either force the railroads to pay higher wages and raise their rates or surrender after prolonged strike battling to superior economic power.

But the government has decided this untrammelled situation, while exactly what the railroads and workers may want, is not fair to the public whose property may be destroyed, prosperity ruined and lives endangered by the cutting off of railroad service or lifting both wages and rates to uneconomic levels. It set up the Interstate Commerce commission as automatic controller of rates, thereby removing from the railroads their freedom of action. They no longer have any choice, being unable to adjust their income to changes in the wages, and so are forced to fight wage increases or go under. As this situation is somewhat illogical and really an encouragement to strike conditions the government also set up the railroad labor board, which similarly removes from strikers their absolute freedom of action and sets wages as the commission sets rates.

If the Railroad Labor board is abolished, as is now threatened, without some such replacement as Mr. Harding has suggested, the only logical conclusion is that the control of rates should be abolished also, in order to free the railroads for the condition of economic warfare thus officially reopened. If the public is to surrender to the primitive system of the strike it must surrender to both sides at once. We must restrain or free both Railroad Tom and Labor Dick; we cannot tie one and free the other to hit him.

A NEW WAR DEBT PLAN

The chief outcome of the reparations conference at Brussels has appeared to be a confession of failure and a renewal of the proposition that America take some part, by cancelling French debts, in making it agreeable for France to do without her German indemnities. Great Britain would do the same; and the novel phase of the latest suggestion is the lack of intimation that the United States also cancel the debt of the British. For that we should be thankful.

It is common knowledge abroad that the principal problem is the establishment of a stable currency in central Europe—with special reference to the German mark, whose fall is the center of the whole muddle. France cannot think abstractly about this problem, because she is haunted by fear of a revival of German prosperity and a consequent frontier menace; and because her people are crying out against being taxed for what Germany, by all rights, ought to pay. She is unable to see, and indeed it is unnatural to expect her to, that it is up to France to help her traditional enemy to a condition of plenty when that enemy is using every means at hand to dodge his just obligations.

Great Britain is now intimating to the United States that it might be a good plan, as sisters, to coax France out of this position by forgiving the war debts. As Great Britain for once is not slipping in any hints on her own account we can consider the proposal without prejudice. It seems unlikely that the reparations problem will be settled eventually in any other way.

FEW INDIGENT DEAF

Twenty-seven years ago the alumni of the Ohio State school for the Deaf established a home for aged and infirm deaf persons. Today there are only thirty-five persons living there. The superintendent of the school cites this fact as evidence of the money-earning power and the thrift of deaf persons. The census shows, he says, that there are in Ohio a smaller per cent of indigent deaf than of indigent persons who hear.

The majority of students at the deaf school become self-supporting. In addition to two years or regular high school courses the girls are taught to sew, make beds, cook and keep house. They learn trade sewing, millinery and baking. After two years of required wood-working, the boys are allowed to study baking, shoe-making, tailoring, printing or other trades. Both boys and girls learn linotyping and become proficient at it.

The students contribute to their own support while in the school. They make much of the furniture used in the institution. They do all the baking for their school and for the state school for the blind. They issue a weekly paper which is read by interested persons all over the world.

It is a singular fact that a large proportion of persons afflicted with serious impairment of faculties overcome them and become not only self-sustaining but more than ordinarily successful. Handicaps of this kind in many instances seem to stimulate greater effort. Persons possessed of all their faculties and in good health often do not exert themselves and then complain of failure.

SMOKING PROHIBITED

Ignorant senators, as they are called, had an annual laugh when Senator Joe Wheeler, of Montana, took a seat and continued puffing upon an after dinner cigar. He was informed by a page that smoking was prohibited, and had been since the days of "Ben" Tillman, to whom smoking was abhorrent.

The rule is a never-ending source of joy to anti-social smokers, but sincere regret that it may be responsible for the inactivity of lawmakers. At any rate, smoking is not prohibited in the cloak rooms, where much of the business of the senate is transacted.

Both within and without the ranks of senators, the floors of the chamber generally is regarded as the arena where orators are put through their paces and spectacles are staged. There is testimony to the effect that persuasive speakers come times away their hearers, and win votes for measures. It is admitted that most of the theatricals are carefully rehearsed.

It is creditable to the senate that the rule against smoking is maintained. While the individual may indulge elsewhere, on the floor of the chamber there is greater dignity when the faces of the speakers are not hidden by clouds of tobacco smoke. —PITTSBURGH SUN.

FAMILY STRIKES

Although the public may not appreciate it, the strikes of the Carlson family, of Brooklyn, N. Y., which has ended with a complete victory for the strikers, has for the heads of several million American families a sinister significance. Bengt Carlson, head of the clan, refused to give up the home in which he and his large household had lived for a quarter of a century. His family did not like to move, they left him, he and his baggage. At the end of a week Carlson capitulated. Now his family has returned and the strike is over. The government should do something about this, if families are allowed to enter into this form of conspiracy, the sanctity of the home will be violated, the authority of paternal families destroyed, and the morale of the domestic institution undermined. For failure to buy a piano or a new sedan, strikes may be ordered all over the country, and sympathetic walk-outs are not an improbable contingency. The situation seems ripe for federal interference. —NORFOLK VIRGINIAN PILOT.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

COOLING OFF CORYZA

Coryza with the accent on the eyes, is not just my idiosyncrasy but the proper name for the disease vulgarly called "cold in the head." There are other names commonly applied to coryza, such as "distemper," which is nearly as vague if not so misleading as "cold" and "acute catarrh," which is pleasing to those who exploit the nonentity called "catarrh," and finally "acute rhinitis" which means acute inflammation of the nose, and that is scarcely descriptive of coryza.

I told on Monday, October 23, how to work off coryza and some cases of acute catarrh (otitis media) by going out and chopping wood for a few hours or hiking briskly some five miles, or taking any other kind of vigorous exercise of sufficient duration to have an appreciable stimulating influence on metabolism. I took pains, to warn the experimenter that the time when this effort to "work it off" is worth while is at the very beginning of the indisposition, and that after the first six to ten hours of said disposition the better treatment is rest.

Another way to break up or abort a "threatening" or oncoming coryza is by cooling it off. The modus operandi of the cooling treatment is really a little over our depth, but I can attempt to explain it. Nearly everybody has colds, peevish, stuffy up and running at the nose or plugging from a hot bath into a cold air bath. This is only occasional and not very annoying in normal individuals, but a constant and troublesome complaint of persons having some chronic trouble in nose or throat. The stuffiness is temporary. If one remains in the cold air bath for longer than, say, half an hour, the upper breathing passages begin to clear out and remains clear indefinitely, provided one is comfortably warm.

I couldn't avoid adding that provision about keeping warm; not without leaving my story unfinished. Every one who has made the observation of the clearing effect of cold air on the breathing knows that this effect is characteristic when one is keeping warm by, say, skating, tramping over the country with a pop gun after poor harmless little animals, shagging big game, but trees or some such vicious activity. So, after all, it is merely a variation of "working it off." In both cases, the benefit derived, as far as the breaking up of the threatening coryza is concerned depends upon stimulation of metabolism or the oxidation or combustion process of the system. Exercise causes increased absorption of oxygen in the system. So does cold air.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Honest or Indian Sage

Please tell me what honest tea is good for and what honest is?—P. G. T.

Answer—Other names for honest are Eupatorium, Indian sage, thoroughwort. A tea made by steeping an ounce of the dried leaves in a pint of water, poured over a leaves and boiled hot and allowed to steep in a bottle, is given in doses of an ounce or two every hour to induce sweating, or in doses of half a pint to cause vomiting.

Odoriferous Sweat

Many of our high school boys seek a remedy for odoriferous sweating of the feet.—C. K. S.

Answer—Mop or sponge soles and between toes with a solution of one ounce of formalin in six ounces of water, and let dry, each alternate day for three or four times.

Perfect Lady, Barring Spots

Kindly give me instructions for clearing white spots from my finger nails. As soon as some spots grow out others appear.—P. A.

Answer—I regret I do not know how to remove or prevent such white spots in the nails. They are commonly caused by slight injuries of the nails, as in careless manicuring.

Milk and Running

I would like to know whether the drinking of milk is harmful to track men. I have been told that it affects the wind especially that of distance men.—P. B.

Answer—Milk has only a good effect on the wind of a runner. He may well include a quart or two of pure fresh raw milk in his daily diet. (Copyright, National Newspaper Service.)

PRESS DEMANDS SQUARE DEAL FOR INDIAN

An incident which dramatizes the eternal vigilance that alone assures the liberty has aroused deep interest and feeling in American newspapers, followed by editorial insistence on fair play for the Pueblo Indians. The Bureau Pueblo Indian Bill "slipped through the Senate," reports the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR (Boston); "no other phrase expresses the suspicious and sinister celerity with which it passed that body without debate." But because "on the face of the transaction it has the appearance of a conspiracy to rob the Pueblos of their holdings," as the ROCHESTER TIMES UNION states the case, it was protested by the press and by various organized bodies including the American Ethnological Society and the General Federation of Women's Clubs. As a result, "thanks to Senator Borah, the bill has been recalled from the House," and "will not again be railroaded through the Senate without discussion as a matter of routine merely because a Senator from New Mexico gives his word that it is all right or a Secretary of the Interior from New Mexico calls it an 'Administration measure.'" for "the Senate has been put on its guard," the NEW YORK WORLD declares. Moreover the press has also been put on its guard, and after looking closely into the actual provisions of the bill "it is voicing a demand that the measure be emphatically defeated."

"Cheating the red man of his rights as the real American and a human being is a sport which seems never to lose its popularity in certain quarters," observes the BRATTLEBORO REFORMER; "it has led to the greatest injustice to the Indians individually and as a race, and to the destruction of characteristic evidences of their civilizations, which should have been cherished and preserved for their part in the history of this continent." The Bureau bill dealing with the Pueblo lands in New Mexico looks to the ASHLEY PARK PRESS "like another attempt at land-grabbing, of a kind perpetrated only too often in the history of this country." But in the widespread reaction against the Bureau measure the PRESS also sees "a wholesome sign. It reveals at least a disposition on the part of the country to insist on justice to the Indians."

"When an Indian has any land which the white men covet it is quite natural for the white men to conclude that it would be for the benefit of the Indian for the pale-face to take it," observes the PITTSBURGH GAZETTE TIMES, and because that seems to be the motive behind the movement, the CHICAGO JOURNAL declares that "the Bureau bill ought to be entitled: 'An act to starve the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona.' For indeed, the NEW YORK TRIBUNE agrees, it contains "numerous provisions which show the legalized ruthlessness which the white men willing to use when they covet the land of their Indian neighbors." The TRIBUNE explains the means by which possession of such land is sought under the bill.

"Some of the Indians during the last generation allowed squatters to settle on their lands," it says. "One section of the Bureau bill reads that all persons who for more than ten years prior to June 20, 1910, have had actual possession 'with or without color of title,' of any lands within the exterior boundary of the Pueblo grants shall be entitled to a decree in their favor for the whole lands so claimed. In return for these the government shall have surveyed from the public lands a tract as near the Pueblos as possible 'equal in area and value or equal in value' to the land so seized. In case suitable substitute lands cannot be found the government shall deposit the value of the seized lands to the credit of the Pueblos."

This suggestion the TRIBUNE finds "manifestly hypocritical," since "it is well known that all the public lands worth cultivating by the Pueblos have long since been occupied by squatters. If such lands actually did exist there is no reason why they should not be given to the squatters instead of to the Indians, who for centuries inhabited their present sites."

"There isn't a white man in America today with a clearer title to his land than the Pueblo," the PORT WATNE JOURNAL GAZETTE asserts, a title derived from Spanish grants dating as far back as 1690, "and confirmed by Mexico, then by the republic of Texas, and then once more by the government of the United States during the administration of Abraham Lincoln. Through all these years these civilized red men have improved these lands, cultivating, irrigating, making them worth while."

Pueblo Indians, we learn from the ITICA PRESS, "had a civilization of no mean importance before the colonies were born in the tribal crafts and customs they have contributed much that is distinctive to the achievement of this continent." In more detail the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR adds—"From all over the world scientists and artists have come to observe their customs and ceremonies. The painter has found stimulus in the atmosphere of their villages; the musician inspiration in the rude harmonies; the author and the archaeologist food for reflection in their customs and relics. Only the poet, after the material advantage accruing to the southwest from the protection and maintenance of the Pueblo villages can explain the approval by public men of this legislation."

Granting, however, that "political, humanitarian and scientific considerations all enter in the situation," the BOSTON HERALD suggests that "neither the historic nor the scientific aspect is vital just at present to the

Badger Girl Was Great Sculptor

Women of Washington who knew her and her wonderful creative art conducted memorial exercises Saturday in honor of Vinnie Ream Hoxie, sculptor and musician and the only woman sculptor for whom Abraham Lincoln statue of Lincoln, which the great statue of Lincoln, which the government placed in the capitol, before she was 17.

An unusual story of pluck and talent was furnished by the life of Vinnie Ream, who died here eight years ago. Physically infirm, hardly larger than a 12-year-old girl, Vinnie Ream became one of America's noted sculptors.

Vinnie Ream was born in the late forties in the little pioneer town that later became Madison, Wis. Her father was a land agent. She learned the rudiments of music from an itinerant teacher who came along the frontier lines selling guitars and giving music lessons.

Some months later her father sent her to Christian college, Columbia, Mo. Her career there, however, was cut short because of family reverses, and the family went to Washington. She obtained a clerical position in the post office.

Out in the Missouri college the bright little girl had come to the attention of Maj. Rollins, one of the directors. Maj. Rollins then had a happy thought; he would get Clark Mills, the sculptor, to make a bust of Vinnie Ream.

"I could do that if I had some of that clay," said Vinnie, and the unbending Mills put a little clay in her hands. Her small fingers modeled his features. It amazed the sculptor and others in his studio.

"I've found my work; I'm going to be a sculptor," she said that day to her mother.

Finally Vinnie Ream struck a hard bargain with her office that she would do as much work in a morning as any other employee did in a whole day and thereby get the afternoons off for art.

One day President Lincoln passed the post office. Vinnie Ream saw him and out of this hasty view came a remarkable likeness in clay.

Head of the war president, Maj. Rollins persuaded the president to receive the girl sculptor. At first Mr. Lincoln said he did not have time to sit for her. When he learned that she was poor and dependent and her great talent needed encouragement he consented.

The bust was so striking in its likeness that congress appropriated for a full sized statue of Lincoln to be placed in the capitol building. Vinnie Ream was awarded the contract.

Her body lies in Arlington and a bronze reproduction of one of her creations, Sappho, rests above her grave. On a tablet portrait of Vinnie Ream this sentiment is carved: "Words that would praise thee are impotent."

Aside from her statue in the capitol, here and there throughout the land are pieces of her handiwork in clay, marble and bronze. The West owned by the state of Wisconsin, and Miriam in a private gallery in Philadelphia are typical of her art, and other specimens have been approvingly viewed by art lovers gathered in world expositions.

Because of all this and the inspirations of her career the Vinnie Ream memorial committee of the League of American Pen Women, of which she was a member, will observe the anniversary of her death with befitting exercises.

The Question Box

The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. How did the tune "Old Hundred" get such a name? T. C.

A. The melody was known in the fifteenth century. In England it was used for Keth's version of the Hundredth Psalm. All people that can add do dwell, and was called the Hundredth Tune. The word old was added when the Psalter was revised.

Q. Can real diamonds be made? L. S.

A. The Geological Survey says that diamonds were made by Moissan by the sudden chilling of molten iron containing dissolved carbon. They have also been made by another process involving simultaneous action of high temperature and pressure. Diamonds are not made extensively as the large stones are imperfect.

Pueblos themselves, for their protest "is against what seems like an attempt to deprive them of the agricultural resources which are their only safeguard against starvation." And, as the ELMIRA STAR GAZETTE says, they "were not given a chance to say or do anything about the bill."

However, the BUFFALO NEWS believes that "injustices to the Indians do not all lightly on the consciences of a American people," and because "now and again a spirit of righteous indignation is aroused at threatened wrongs," the Pueblos have still a fighting chance. Senator Borah's action in recalling the measure for reconsideration "probably means its death in the form in which it was enacted," the HARTFORD TIMES believes, and because of "public interest in the fight," the BOSTON POST holds "doubts about its passage in any form."

MEN, NOT WOMEN, SLAVES OF FASHION

London—Of all the pompous prejudices that prop the self-esteem of men and make the shoulders of indolent women shake with laughter, probably the most humorous is this: Women are the slaves of fashion, writes Maude Meagher in the Daily Express.

Women are free. They range the world over in search of whatever odd adornments suit their fancy. It is men who are bound, handcuffed, and gagged by a fashion that puts blinkers on them and a ball and chain about their ankles.

The tall boots of the Russian and the bright beads of the Moor, the gaudy shawls of the Spaniard or the embroideries of the Bavarian peasant, are all adopted by woman; they appeal to her, and cast aside when she tires of them. Is not fashion slave to woman, travelling the earth like the genie of Aladdin's lamp to find objects for her pleasure?

It is on man that fashion takes revenge for all she suffers from the capricious commands of woman.

Man is held in the manacles of fashion and chained inexorably to the wall of convention. Before his commands he is a coward and a slave.

What man would dare wear a scarlet waistcoat to the office in these grey November days that cry aloud for color? What man would dare to deck the funeral blackness of his tail hat with a flaming band of crimson? A flock of color in his homely tweeds is looked upon with suspicion by his associates.

A colored handkerchief, he is allowed, but imagine the effect of a graceful sash, hanging with fringed edges to his knees!

It may be that this rigid conformity to the dull liverly that fashion makes them wear with only the occasional timorous defiance of socks of forbidden colors, or a brilliant tie—may be that this miserable second-hand to dull and uninteresting tweed and serge has, like the hair shirts old penitents wore, a salutary effect on men's souls.

It may be that the unrestrained imagination that woman puts into her clothes, their color, their shape, and their shortness, it may be that this is the cause as well as the effect of her frivolity, her light-headedness, her capriciousness.

It may be that, or it may be a sign of her freedom, her courage, and her cosmopolitan instincts.

FRONTIER BARRIERS TO CENTRAL EUROPEAN NEWS

London—According to the Vienna correspondent of the Times had communications are one of the many curses which the war has left behind in Central and Eastern Europe. The reason is partly that people are too poor to pay for good ones and partly that the new national States like to emphasize their frontiers and keep control of what goes in and out. This applies not only to railway and postal traffic but also to the exchange of public news. Not since the invention of the telegraph have the countries east of Italy and Germany known less about what goes on in their neighborhoods' territory than they do today.

A notable example was given the other day, when an explosion of fire-damp occurred in a coal mine in Transylvania (Roumania), and 212 miners were buried alive. Not a word of this ghastly catastrophe was heard outside Roumania until a full week later, when some details culled from the local newspapers of Klausenburg, the nearest large town to the scene of the disaster, were reproduced in the Austrian and Hungarian press. In the old days, when Klausenburg was in Hungary, the news would have come at once by telegraph to Budapest and Vienna, and from there have been spread all around the world. Today the boundary between the new Roumania and the new Hungary has come down like

Woods Perfume Has No Rival

(William Chalmers Covert, in The American Lumberman.)

I smell the rich mould that decaying leaves of centuries laid on the floor of the hardwood forest that made my boyhood happy. There was in it the odor of a long-gone yesterday in which my grandfather made his fight against Indians and malaria while subduing clay lands with drains and lime that a new and better day might come.

No perfume is sweeter than the resinous tang that saturates the air at noon when the hot sun has drawn out the breath of fir and balsam. It is medicine from the divine apothecary for tired lung cells and it recreates and revives men and women as nothing in the world of drugs and chemicals can possibly do. And when the spring comes it adds a new quality of perfume to woods and woodland flowers.

It is a sweetness that must be taken promptly, for a rapid maturing of the blooming plants soon dulls color and fragrance of these delicate flowers growing in the most extended and exquisite gardens of all the out doors. When wood violets at the best exude, it is like the incense of some hidden altar.

Men have lost the knowledge of the old world, contentment, in the hurry and stress of today. False desires burn in their bosoms, and greed for gain lures, while pleasures and pastime crowd the hours and night and day crowd life into a fussy, relentless schedule. We need to go apart with ancient trees and ageless hills and under the calm sky ask what life means to men who pass this way but once and every step of whose pathway is toward the exit out of which they soon are to go into the quiet of eternity.

Formerly Vienna was a news center not only for Austria-Hungary but for the whole of the Balkans and the Near East. The Vienna Correspondence Bureau and the Neue Freie Presse and other Vienna newspapers had their own correspondents and arrangements for collecting news in every town in this quarter of Europe. Now things are very different. An independent foreign news service is more than any one newspaper in Central Europe can afford. The circulation of news from one country to another devolves mainly on the semi-official state-subsidized news agencies, which send out nothing which is unfavorable to their own countries.

Such newspapers as can afford to pay for correspondence from neighboring countries have to depend on local journalists, whose messages are also written with an eye to what their own Government will approve. It is not worth their while to do otherwise. A Hungarian journalist, who contributed some outspoken articles about his own country to a Vienna newspaper, was recently tried for treason and condemned to two years' loss of civil rights.

The foreign news of the Vienna papers is supplied mainly from Berlin, by arrangement with the great "Ullstein and Mosse concerns, and this as often as not, is mere gleanings word of this ghastly catastrophe was heard outside Roumania until a full week later, when some details culled from the local newspapers of Klausenburg, the nearest large town to the scene of the disaster, were reproduced in the Austrian and Hungarian press. Young Army Of Carriers Will Feast

Post-Crescent Force Will Have Annual Christmas Banquet at Y. M. C. A.

Appleton Post-Crescent's young army of carrier boys will be guests of Post Publishing company at the annual Christmas banquet to be held at 6:30 Thursday evening in the dining hall of the Y. M. C. A.

Covers will be laid for about a hundred young newspaper merchants, including the substitutes who form the ever-ready army which prevents interruption of delivery of the paper when the regulars are ill or absent. Of course the special goodies will be the most appealing feature until the stomachs catch up with the eyes, but some program features will be provided also. The Rev. Paul O. Kelcher, rector of All Saints church, will give the youths a short, fascinating talk. Dr. R. C. Finkle of Seymour then will perform some new sleight of hand tricks, while the kids try to figure out how he did them.

Carrier from Kaukauna, Little Chute, Kimberly and Combined Locks will be among those gathered at the festive board. Other suburban carriers who live too far from Appleton to serve their patrons and then come will be tendered some other form of appreciation of their faithful work later by the company.

Name Plenty Of Children For Elk Club Party

Elk officials in charge of the Christmas party for deserving children of Appleton, to be held at 10:30 Saturday morning at Appleton theater are receiving a flood of letters from persons who know of less fortunate youngsters who ought to attend the motion picture program and distribution of candy.

Invitations are being sent to these youngsters assuring them of admission at the theater. The lodge is glad to have suggestions from everybody who knows of children whose Christmas might not be a happy one otherwise.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union which had been planned for Thursday afternoon has been postponed. It will be held the first Thursday in January.

The Progressive classes of the Congregational church will meet at 7:30 Thursday evening in the church. Mr. H. E. Peabody will talk to his class on the "art of Warship" which is the second lesson on family worship and the Rev. C. W. Gross will have as his subject "The Modern Church at Work."

The meeting of St. Aloysius Young Men's society which was to have been held at St. Joseph hall Tuesday evening, was postponed because of lack of a quorum. No definite date was set for the meeting.

CLUB MEETINGS

At its meeting at the Sherman house Monday noon, the Lions club decided to hold no more meetings until Monday, Jan. 8. The speaker at the luncheon was R. J. Polan, principal of the second district schools, who talked on "Education and the Problems of the School."

The annual meeting of the local division of the National Dental society will be held at Valley Inn, Neenah, Wednesday evening and will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30. Appleton dentists are planning to be present.

The basketball team of Appleton Women's club will meet for practice at 7:15 Friday evening. It will also meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings between Christmas and New Years. The special practices are being held in preparation for the game in January with the Green Bay Y. W. C. A.

LODGE NEWS

Master mason degree was conferred upon two candidates at the regular meeting of Waterville lodge of Masonic hall Tuesday evening. A special communication has been called for Friday night, at which work in fellow craft degree will be conducted.

INTERLAKE CHRISTMAS PARTY ATTENDED BY 430

Four hundred thirty persons were present at the party given Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. by Interlake Athletic association. The party was for the employees of Interlake Pulp and Paper Co. and their families, but particularly for the children. An orchestra played during the greater part of the evening and community singing was one of the features. During the latter part of the program Santa Claus appeared and after talking and playing with the children gave them presents.

ADVENT SERVICE

Special advent services will be held at 7:45 Wednesday evening in First English Lutheran church. It will be the last midweek advent service and the Rev. F. C. Reuter will talk on "Jesus at the Door."

Henry Stevens, student at Dartmouth, and his brother Gilbert Stevens, who is attending the University of Michigan, are spending their holiday vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens.

Poor Lighting Detracts From College Play

Ineffective lighting facilities and inexperience caused the program put on at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Tuesday evening by the dramatic classes of Lawrence college to be something of a disappointment to the audience. The acting in the first play was not bad nor was the individual acting in the pantomime, but the ideas in both parts of the program did not get across very well to the audience.

Lord Dunsany's play, "A Night at an Inn" has wonderful possibilities for acting and for scenic and lighting details. In its proper setting with the stage barely lighted, the effect of the thing is weird and gripping. Because of lack of facilities or lack of time to work them out, the dramatic class put the play on in a well lighted setting causing what should have been gruesome to appear only humorous and the audience giggled when it should have been tense with excitement. The character acting of some of the men in the play was exceedingly good, however.

The pantomime is the story of an unselfish little girl who gave up her beloved doll as a tribute to the fairy queen to whom people from all the countryside had brought gifts. The queen offered the child her choice of all the queen's gifts, but she chose instead the Christmas star which was the most beautiful thing she could find. Details of the pantomime were not well worked out and most of the audience was at a loss to know what it was all about. The gifts of the visitors to the queen were not made distinct enough as gifts, but gave the impression of a series of unrelated incidents.

PARTIES

Christmas jokes and gifts were features of the Christmas party given by the Long Distance Hikers club in Guild hall of All Saints church Tuesday evening. Dancing and games also were enjoyed.

Members of the Wednesday afternoon gymnasium class of the Vocational school will entertain small friends at a party at the school at the usual class time on Wednesday afternoon.

The Thursday and Friday gymnasium classes will have parties at Appleton Women's clubroom at their regular class time. The parties will include supper and the Thursday afternoon girls will exchange gifts.

Mrs. John Lueders entertained the M. R. club at her home, 991 First-st., Friday evening. Dancing and were won by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jannetahn. Mrs. Lueders and Frank Schwanke.

Program Is Ready For Public Tree

720 Pounds Of Goodies, 1,600 Popcorn Balls To Be Given Children Saturday

At 7 o'clock Saturday evening the annual community Christmas tree program will be given in the vacant property across from the Sherman house. The exercises will be short and impressive. The tree will be kept standing during the week between Christmas and New Years and lighted each evening.

Santa Claus will officiate at the tree to give out bags of candy and nuts to all the children. Girl scouts are busy filling the bags with 620 pounds of candy, 200 pounds of peanuts and 1,600 popcorn balls. The filling of the bags is taking place at Appleton Women's clubroom.

There will be carol singing under direction of Dr. Earl Baker. All groups of young people, including church choirs, glee clubs and choruses which have been practicing carols are urged to be at the tree in their own groups so they may form nuclei for the singing.

SAECKER TALKS TO VOCATION BOARDS

W. S. Ford, director of the vocational school, and H. G. Saecker, president of the vocational school board, attended a conference of vocational school directors and school boards at Milwaukee Wednesday called by George P. Hambrecht, director of the state board of vocational education.

Mr. Saecker was one of the speakers at the afternoon meeting and presented some practical facts from the standpoint of the manufacturer on "Apprenticeship and Part Time Education."

The meeting was called so vocational educators and members of the boards could become acquainted with others in like capacities and discuss their common problems together.

Y. M. C. A. HOLDING ITS WHITE CHRISTMAS PARTY

Everything is in readiness for the white Christmas party at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening staged by the boys' department council. The edshow will open at 7:30 and from then until 10 o'clock the program will move rapidly. A motion picture will be put on at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 there will be a swimming exhibition. A night at camp will be followed at 9:30 by a basketball game between the Badger club and the "A" men of Appleton high school. The events are open to the public.

As You Seldom See Him

Few pictures of General Pershing have been taken which show him out of uniform. Here is America's military hero with Mrs. Potter Palmer at the Bal Fantasique at which the Chicago Four Hundred raised $30,000 for charity. The present Mrs. Potter Palmer is the daughter-in-law of her famous namesake of a generation ago.

Baptist Church Giving Nativity Drama Friday

REPAIR BREAK ON SUBMERGED MAIN

Water consumers in the lower Fourth ward whose water supply was cut off Sunday when a main extending through Fox river near John street broke, have had their service restored. The break was repaired Tuesday noon by city employees. The repair was made by first building a coffer dam. A fire department pump was used to draw out the water from the dam so as to allow the men to work in it. The cold weather which was from 5 to 10 below zero during the time the men were working there impeded the work to some extent.

HEAVY TRAVEL KEEPS UP HOTEL BUSINESS

Hotel patronage which usually drops off more than 60 per cent about the middle of December, is keeping up to normal for the first time in several years. One hotel had more than 100 guests Tuesday evening, practically all of them commercial men and the others had their proportion. There is every indication the holiday season will be cut short this year and that the commercial men will return to the road immediately after New Years. Under ordinary conditions they do not report for duty until the middle of January.

St. Paul Y.P.S. Plans Party For Basketball Men

The Christmas party to be given by the Young Peoples society of St. Paul church has been postponed from Thursday evening to Friday evening, Dec. 22. The feature will be a basketball game between North-western college of Watertown and St. Paul team. The game is to be played at the Y. M. C. A.

At the conclusion of the game the players of both teams and members of the society will visit St. Paul school hall where a Christmas tree and Santa Claus will be in waiting. Arrangements are being made for the entertainment of 75 persons. The chairman of the entertainment committee is Miss Irene Reinhardt and that of the refreshment committee Miss Mabel Ross.

SAYS NEGROES ARE HELP TO AMERICA

Negroes are not entirely a burden on American civilization, Mrs. L. B. Rossman told women of the Congregational church at the monthly all-day meeting Tuesday, in her talk on "The Trend of the Negro World." She mentioned negroes who stand out as contributors to music, literature and poetry. The general feeling prevailing between the white and black races and the attitude of the north in dealing with the situation were explained. Mrs. W. R. Chalmers had charge of the devotion at the missionary society meeting at 3 o'clock. Mrs. H. W. Meyer, Jr., sang a group of negro melodies, accompanied by Miss Irene Bidwell.

The Womens union met for a business session following a luncheon at 12:30.

Coeds Discover Good Usage For Tobacco Cans

"Have you a little tobacco can at home?" Have you promised it to any one? That is what all the Sacagawes and Ojibwas at Lawrence college are asking their men friends (and the professors whom they suspect of hiding the pipe). The craze of black painted and hand painted tobacco cans or jars, coat hangers, milk bottles and what not has struck the coeds and they are swinging some mean paint brushes after closing hours at night. By the smell of their rooms you shall know the painters, for enamel has a paint-some odor.

Observe Christmas
Christmas will be celebrated for the holiday period beginning Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. cafeteria by means of music and special decorations. A Christmas tree is being trimmed and will be placed in the dining room. Yuletide music will be furnished each day with a phonograph.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE TO FORMER HOTEL

Three Bear Creek Families Are Affected When Roof Of Building Burns

Special to Post-Crescent
Bear Creek—Water did considerable damage to the former commercial hotel building when fire broke out about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning on the roof, presumably from sparks from a chimney. The structure is occupied for residence purposes by the Arthur Amos and Ernest and E. L. Sylvester families.

The flames made their way through the attic and burned away a portion of the roof before the village fire department could check their progress. A large amount of water had to be used. The exact loss has not been determined.

CUBAN HOUND NEW BREED DEVELOPED AT DOG SHOW

By Associated Press
Havana, Cuba—"A probable result of the first Havana dog show," says the Havana Telegram, "will be the classification of the Cuban hound among those of recognized breeds. This type, which is the outcome of hundreds of years of mixed breeding, is general throughout the country districts. It is a huge animal weighing about 120 pounds, of a yellow to brown color, with the ears of a bird dog and the muzzle of a mastiff. Its hair is short and smooth and its tail long and wiggly."

KAUKAUNA SHOWS STRENGTH IN ITS FIRST CAGE GAME

Wrightstown Gets Only Two Points In Tuesday Afternoon Contest

Kaukauna—High school basketball team, 26 to 1, in the initial game of the season at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon at the auditorium. Although the team showed class and easily outplayed its opponents, it was evident that the squad is not in the best of shape and that hard practice during the next few weeks is essential. Both teams resorted to the five man defense style of playing and in this respect the Orange and Black also outplayed the visitors. In fact the ball was in Kaukauna's possession nearly all of the time and the Wrightstown boys had very few chances to try for basket shots. Their only point was the result of a personal foul which gave them two chances at the net.

Ott and Nistau starred for the local school. Both men had unerring eyes for the mesh and dropped through several shots from different points. Jake Horde also played a good game at center. He outmanned his opponent and placed the ball to his liking on every jump. The score at the end of the first half was 18 to 0. A small crowd of students attended the game.

Social Items

Kaukauna—A large crowd attended the Christmas musicale given Tuesday evening in Methodist church by the girls glee club of Outagamie County Training school. The program consisted of solos and choruses. The Rev. W. D. Hulien, pastor of the church gave a short Christmas message.

Charles Lowery won a turkey for his Christmas dinner as first prize at a card party for members of the Local Order of Moose and their wives following the regular business meeting Monday evening in Odd Fellow hall. George Sager received a goose as year-end prize and William Tousey was granted the custody of a Plymouth rock rooster as "hooby" prize. Only routine business was transacted at the business meeting.

Officers will be elected at a regular meeting of Electric City chapter, Order of DeMolay at 7:30 Thursday evening in Masonic hall. Applications for membership also will be received and regular business will be transacted.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM BY REFORMED CHURCH CHOIR

Kaukauna—The augmented choir of Reformed church will render a Christmas cantata entitled "Glory to God" at 10:15 Sunday morning, Dec. 21, in Reformed church. The choir will consist of about 25 voices. The cantata consists of eleven numbers and includes choruses, soprano and alto solos, soprano obligato, quartets and duets and a tenor obligato, assisted by a mixed quartet. Rehearsals have been held regularly for months. The program will be open to the public.

Mayors Meet

A conference of Wisconsin mayors took place in Kenosha on Wednesday. The meeting was addressed by experts on city planning and the drafting of zoning ordinances. Mayor Henry Reuter of Appleton was not able to be present at the meeting.

FLORENCE NAGEL WEDS ALVIN PIEHL

Ceremony At Seymour Occurs On Wedding Anniversary Of Her Parents

Seymour—At high noon Tuesday, the twenty-eighth wedding anniversary of her parents, Miss Florence Nagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel, of Seymour, was married to Alvin Piehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Piehl, also of this city. The Rev. H. A. Franke performed the ceremony at the home of the bride. The attendants were Alfred Piehl, a brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Ethel Nagel, a sister of the bride.

A wedding dinner was served following the ceremony at the Nagel home. The guests included, besides those mentioned above, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Runte, William Piehl and sons Frank and William, Miss Dorothy Nagel and Mrs. Herman Husman. Mrs. Husman is the grandmother of the bride and is 97 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Piehl left for Chicago and other points where they will spend two weeks visiting friends and relatives. They will occupy a new residence erected by Mr. Piehl upon their return here. The bridegroom is associated with Miller and Piehl Lumber company.

ADJOURN MEETING

No business could be conducted at the adjourned meeting of Seymour Fair and Driving Park association held Tuesday because the auditing committee was not ready to report. The meeting was adjourned, to reassemble at the call of the president, Miss Mary Beth Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Powers, is recovering from illness with diphtheria. Mrs. Peter Blanshan has returned from Deaconess hospital, Green Bay, with her infant son. The baby had been taken there for treatment for pneumonia and is recovering.

Second Chimney Fire

For the second time this month fire broke out in the chimney of the Arcade bowling and billiard hall, 623 Appleton-st., occurring at about 8:30 Tuesday evening. A call was sent for the fire department to extinguish the fire. No damage resulted.

Holiday Greetings

The season of the year approaches when men return naturally from the stress of business to the personal and sentimental side of things.

Christmas is not merely a date on the calendar. It is the season of gladness—It is that season of the year when between friends, the ice of business reserve melts away.

We are happy at this time to extend to our many customers our very kindest Christmas greetings and to wish them all good things for the coming year.

GOLDEN RULE IS CREED OF ROTARY. ORATOR DECLARES

Lafin Says Brotherhood And Fellowship Should Be Rotarians' Aim

"The creed of Rotary is the golden rule. That is the principle which we seek to exemplify to incarnate, if you will, in our daily life, and when the principle of the golden rule becomes effective around the world, then will that day long foretold, the prophet come to pass. In no other way can international problems be solved."

So declared Herbert Lafin, president of Milwaukee Rotary club in an address on "The Rotary Spirit" before members of the Appleton Rotary club and their wives in the Veterans room of the Sherman house Tuesday evening. The speaker was introduced by Mr. O. Kinsman, president of the club.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Carl McKee, who sang "Man of the World," being accompanied at the piano by Edwin Hillert. The attendance was very gratifying. The club has entered a competitive contest with the club at Kingston, N. Y. That club for the first two meetings of this month had a 90 per cent attendance. The percentage for the Appleton club attendance at the first three meetings of this month was 94, 92 and 91 respectively.

NEED MORE FRIENDSHIPS

"The great tragedy of our civilization," said Mr. Lafin, "is not that men are poor. All persons have known something of poverty. Not that men are ignorant, not that men are wicked, but that men are not that men are strangers. Friendship is the great salvation of all problems and difficulties that confront mankind. Rotary develops friendship and brotherhood in the world."

"We have been unable in our quest for knowledge, and we have founded long and far in the pursuit of that quest. We can trace history through the ages almost from the time God said 'let there be light.' We send our messages around the world on the wings of some of the most powerful power."

"We have annihilated time and space and I was about to say matter in that we have brought the great forces of nature to do our bidding. We have gone into the temple of the soul through music, religion and philosophy and learned something of these mighty forces which have raised them up from the depths in the mountain tops where we are to day, and yet there is one thing we have not learned. We have not learned how well it is for man to dwell together in unity."

MISSION OF BROTHERHOOD

And the great message of Rotary is its mission in the world its mission tonight preaching around the world is brotherhood. Rotary breaks down barriers and draws men together in friendship and brotherhood. "Now what are some of the things some of the practical things Rotary is doing here in Wisconsin in Appleton all about us for the well being and betterment in the community in which Rotary labors."

"Well there is our work with the boy. What a wonderful thing it is to be a boy. No, fellows, you will never be a boy again, but there are boys growing up around us some with their feet in sin degradation and death because they have no daddy to lead them. The Rotary comes to them and says 'we will be your daddy and help you to grow up to be worthy citizens.'"

IDEALS ARE HIGH

"Then Rotary intentionally influences the scope of local citizens. That is one of its purposes to develop a

GOOD FELLOWS! YOU ARE THEIR HOPE

This is the sort of a home that will be cheerless on Christmas unless Good Fellows take care of them. This is only typical of many homes in Appleton the breadwinner ill or dead and the mother underfed and poorly clothed trying to eke out an existence for their broods. These kids believe in Santa Claus. They must not be allowed to suffer disillusionment.

friendship that measures up to the greatest ideals and standards of the east and in America that is really pretty high. Our ideals are high if we do fail to live up to them.

Another mission of Rotary is to make loyal citizens, citizens who to the utmost of their ability serve their country in times of peace—for your story is no less ruinous than war—in every duty, responsibility and obligation that comes to them as citizens. There is a call today men and women for consecrated services just as strong and just as commanding a call as that which rang across the country in 1918 a call to enlightened service to help lead America out of the slough in which we seem to be mired today.

"And so Rotary calls us today in these stirring times, through which we are passing to be true loyal citizens. That is Rotary's mission."

We must hitch our wagon to a star, Mr. Lafin said. No institution or nation ever gets very far unless it has high ideals as we read the history of nations.

"We lose our ideals," the speaker said, "it is natural that in the rush we should slip from our motives and forget the standards we set for ourselves. But strive as we may to uphold our end we do not always do it. There is a place where we can get our ideals back if we will, and that is from mother."

The speaker related an instance of Henry W. Grady, the famous southern orator, returning home to his aged mother after years of service for his country for inspiration and hope and for a renewal of the high ideal's she instilled in him as a youth.

"Rotary? How can a man best live the life of a true Rotarian?" inquired Mr. Lafin. He answered the question by saying one who makes as his own this gospel of service. One who adopts the golden rule as a guide to his conduct, one who acts as a right thinking American citizen; one who knows how to make friends and how to keep them, and one who can sympathize with his fellows.

"These should be our ideals to carry on that Rotary, this wonderful new force that has come into the world giving men a wider vision and more substantial hope, that it may accomplish real and lasting benefit for mankind."

J. E. LEHR RETAINED IN MILWAUKEE DAMAGE SUIT

A former Appleton attorney, J. Elmer Lehr, figures prominently in a Milwaukee damage suit, where he represents the plaintiff.

Damages of $20,000, charging that the death of her husband was caused by moonshine, are asked in the suit started in circuit court by Mrs. Catherine B. Baumdiker against Mr. and Mrs. John Nett, proprietors of a saloon.

Albert Baumdiker, a laborer, the husband, died Aug. 4. Mrs. Baumdiker alleges that Nett sold her husband moonshine contrary to law.

"I Am the Law" has for its basis the code of the iron law in not recognizing human ties. In this case it is the action of a mounted policeman who, upon finding that his brother is a murderer, says, "I am not your brother, I am the law." From first to last through the struggle of man against man, woman against woman and woman against man the conflict is continuous.

The cast boasts an excellent total of players, including Alice Lake, Noah and Wallace Beery, Rosemary Theby, Gaston Glass and Kenneth Harlan, each of whom portrays his or her roles in a flawless manner.

At the Majestic

For sheer drama it would be difficult to find a motion picture to beat "My Dad," in which Johnnie Walker of "Over the Hill" fame makes his debut starting today at the Majestic Theatre for 3 days.

The nobility of self-sacrifice, the heroism of a son in fighting to prove his father innocent of a murder, forms the theme of this most unusual picture. And it is a story that fits Johnnie Walker as snugly as the proverbial glove. It shows him struggling through frozen trails, risking his life in tremendous blizzards, suffering the tortures of the numbing cold until he reaches the cabin of the man from whom he can obtain the evidence to prove his father innocent.

There are any number of the big dramatic episodes in "My Dad." Moreover it is filled with the elusive quality we call "heart interest." The love of the son for the father will chisel into the hearts of all beholders.

Ruth Clifford as the girl also gives a fine performance and the broad reaches of the snow lands and towering timber form a striking frame for her beauty. Other players of high calibre make up the cast.

ON THE SCREEN

"I AM THE LAW" IS A THRILLING STORY OF NORTH-WEST POLICE

The term a "northwest mounted story" when applied to "I Am the Law," which received its premiere local showing at the Elite Theater yesterday, takes on a different aspect than it usually implies and that is because of the type of cast and unusual treatment given this story.

A beautiful and realistic setting has been provided the film play, which has for its basis an unusual and interesting complication. It is a red blooded story of crime and swift action, laid in that land of barren whiteness and snowdrifts of the northwest. It has the business and freedom of the successful productions to a marked degree, while its sensational episodes are

JANUARY RECORDS NOW ON SALE

PRODUCTION AT 1920-MARK, ROSY SUMMARY SHOWS

Federal Report On Conditions Shows Best Condition Since Slump

No more encouraging report has been received here by the chamber of commerce on business conditions since the slump of two years ago than the latest business indication bulletin of the United States department of commerce which quotes production as being back at the 1920 level for the first time.

Output of pig iron and steel ingots, the consumption of cotton and silk and the output of cement and brick all exceed any previous month since 1920 while petroleum production made a record never reached before the bulletin was issued.

Clearing up of the coal situation has enabled steel mills to increase operations, but unfilled steel orders continue to gain. Coal production has made gains but the shortage of cars is affecting coal, steel and building material supplies.

PRICES SOAR

Dwindling stocks, delays in transportation and increased wages due to labor shortage have combined to raise prices to a marked degree, it is said. The volume of business as reflected in sales of mail order houses and chain stores and in bank clearing and debits continues to increase and credit has expanded to meet these conditions. This has resulted in a rise in interest rates and a fall in bond prices.

Further encouragement is given in the statement that the exports are the highest since March 1921. Building contracts awarded show an increase in contrast to the usual decline at this season. Residential and industrial buildings account for the increase. Lumber production is about the same.

BRACELET WATCH SPECIAL

20 year guaranteed case at $12.50—C. F. Tennie, Jeweler.

DR. FRANK FOX

Greenville, Tenn.—What may develop into a mystery as great as the Hall-Mills murder case is puzzling police here in the death of Dr. Frank Fox, 26-year-old son of wealthy Dr. C. P. Fox, owner of the Greenville Hospital and Sanitarium.

Dr. Fox's body was found in an automobile along a roadside near here. A bullet had pierced his heart and a pistol lay beside him. A very rare high-heeled print in the mud is the only clue.

Miss Evelyn Kinch, loc. of Marysville, Va., was to have wed Dr. Fox on Christmas Day. She has come to Greenville to aid in solving the mystery.

WISCONSIN STILL LEADS IN CHEESE

Annual Output Of 2,800 Factories Is 15,000 Carloads—Plymouth First

As a producer of cheese Wisconsin ranks first among the states. Her annual production has for years exceeded the 300,000,000 pound mark or close to 75 per cent of the nation's total. On the basis of 1922 prices this immense quantity of cheese, about 15,000 carloads will yield to the farmers of the state $60,000,000.

Wisconsin's immense output of cheese is produced in some 1,800 cheese factories. About two thirds of this number are known as American cheese factories, the balance being classed as foreign cheese factories. In pounds American cheese is in the lead with a total of 230,000,000 pounds. Of the 700,000,000 pounds of foreign cheese brick leads with Swiss ranking second, Limburger third.

PLYMOUTH LEADS

The little city of Plymouth leads the state as a cheese center. There are assembled and distributed some hundred millions pounds annually. Other important concentration centers are Marshfield, Green Bay, Neenah, Watertown, Monroe, Richland Center and New Richmond.

Wisconsin as a leading cheese producing center has a market that is practically nationwide. The central west and the south are its leading outlets with large quantities also going to eastern points.

GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

The growth in volume of cheese handled and the value of the product is clearly shown in the accompanying table.

Year	No. of lbs. of cheese handled	Amount of cheese sold for

URGES BUSINESS TO TRY BUDGETING

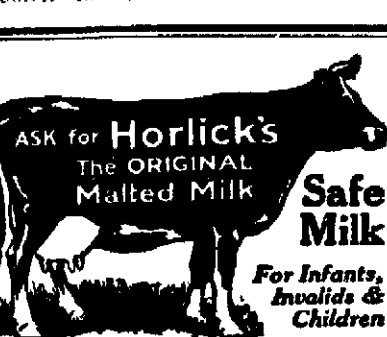

National Chamber Executive Urges Firms To Study New Pamphlet

Belief that the budget idea in business is a relatively new one in Appleton and ought to be given more consideration is expressed by Arthur Lazarus, chief of the costing accounting department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a letter received by the chamber of commerce here relative to the failure of manufacturers and owners of large business houses to make use of the new pamphlet, "Budgeting for Business Control."

Distribution has been rapid and widespread in other cities, Mr. Lazarus says, and he cannot understand why this valuable publication which is free to members in Appleton for the asking has not been obtained and studied.

These are some of the lines of business where it will be valuable, the accountant says: Pulp and paper mills, knitting mills, agricultural implements, department stores, furniture manufacturers, ice cream plants, woolen mills, truck manufacturers,

RADIO PATER

Quietly, without show, an organization of radio amateurs is competing with the commercial telephone and telegraph systems of the United States by the transmission of messages by radio.

After the concerts have been broadcast, and far into the small hours of the morning, messages are being flashed nightly from all parts of the country for reception and delivery by hundreds of members of the American Radio League.

The extent of this unobtrusive radio traffic may be realized by a report given out by the league officials. According to this, 610 members sent and received a total of 27,963 radio messages during last October. Nearly 200,000 reports were transmitted the year ending that month.

Yet this is the work of only a fraction of the thousands of amateur members of the A. R. L. Hundreds, it is believed, received and transmitted radio messages for others and failed to report to headquarters.

The area covered by these radio messengers extends from the Atlantic coast even to Hawaii, from which two stations reported handling of 20 messages in October, and from mid-Canada to the gulf.

Loss of 20 days' time in the transmission and reception of trans-Atlantic signals during December, officials say, will cut down the total of messages handled during this month. This, because the amateur stations will be quiet during the tests.

But the amateurs are training for a month's total of 50,000 messages, which they believe they will attain soon.

ANOTHER RECORD FOR 6XAD

The envy of all radio amateurs is 6XAD, experimental station of Major Lawrence Mott of the U. S. Signal Corps, at Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal.

For Major Mott has established more records in the transmission of radio messages than any other amateur in the country.

Mott's latest feat is the establishment of direct communication with an Australian station 6600 miles away. This, it is believed, is the record for amateur radio transmission.

Mott has been hanging up records in radio ever since this science interested the youth of the country. He is first to have received a radio signal flashed across the country from Washington. Now he is being heard all over the United States with considerable ease.

Some experts express the fact that Mott happens to be in an unusually favorable locality for both radio transmission and reception. But Mott attributes his attainments to the powerful set he has installed.

HELPS UNWEL MOTHER

Mrs. Frank G. Warren, shown above, of Kansas City, has taken into her home Nancy Jordan, an unmarried English mother who with her child had been kept from this country by immigration authorities until she found a home. Mrs. Warren learned of the girl through Warren, her divorced husband, shown below, who had met the girl in London during the war.

Woman Recovering

Mrs. H. J. Hageman of Manawa who is at St. Elizabeth hospital as the result of injuries received when an automobile in which she was riding went over an embankment near Greenville Tuesday morning is improving. Mrs. Hageman has a broken leg.

William Strassburger has returned from a several months' absence at Tomahawk and will resume his duties at the First National bank Thursday. Carl Rossmel, who is attending the state university at Madison arrived home Wednesday for the holidays.

BRIDGE PLANS UP BEFORE COUNCIL

The common council is scheduled to meet Wednesday evening in the city hall. Plans and specifications for the Lawrence and Cherry-st bridges prepared by Harrington, Howard & Ashe, Kansas City engineers, are expected to be submitted. The plans had not yet been received Wednesday forenoon, but a telephone message from the engineers confirmed the fact that they have been mailed.

Sherman House Celebrates Its 36th Birthday

Wednesday, Dec. 20, was the thirtieth anniversary of the formal opening of the Sherman house. At the time it was built the hotel was less than one-fourth its present size and occupied the corner lot. It was enlarged four times and each time material changes were made to the interior. The coffee shop was opened a year ago and the amount of money expended upon it was greater than the cost of the original building. The hotel has never changed hands and has enjoyed a steady growth in business.

WEST END P. O. STATION HAS CHRISTMAS RUSH

Speaking of Christmas postal congestion, John Letz, who has been called "the postmaster of the west end" is doing a rushing business himself. The west end substation, located in Downer west end pharmacy, has been crowded every day this week. A large volume of parcel post is being mailed from the postal station daily, the parcel post delivery trucks collecting four and five loads. There also has been a large increase in first class mail. This service has relieved main postoffice to a great extent.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Miller of Antigo were guests of Appleton friends Tuesday.

The Spirit of Service

AS the old year passes into history and men take stock of their achievements and of their weaknesses, there is stressed that spirit of service which is the soul of business.

It is the Christmas spirit materialized, the spirit of Kindness, Justice, Equity and Fair Dealing, the spirit which gives body to the Golden Rule.

The spirit of service is ever present in the policies of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) permeating every phase of its activities.

The spirit of service is a principle which radiates naturally from the management and through every fibre and unit of the organization. Such a spirit is essential in a big business if the work it is designed to do be comprehensive in its scope.

It provides proper compensation for men and women who have grown old in the service.

It provides pleasant working conditions for employees.

It embraces a plan whereby employees may become partners in the business, insuring a comfortable feeling of independence, thereby supplanting worry with peace of mind.

It provides a channel through which the worker in the humblest position may bring his grievance, if he has one, to the attention of the management and be sure of consideration.

These four manifestations of the Standard Oil spirit of service reflect themselves directly in developing contented employees, who work with an enthusiasm impossible to those who labor under the lash.

The material benefits of this daily application of the Christmas spirit are mirrored to a superlative degree in the superior service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) through its harmonious, happy, contented family of 27,000 employees is able to render to 30 million people in 10 Middle Western States.

It is this spirit of service animating the entire organization which has enabled the Directors to render so praiseworthy an accounting of their stewardship to the 26,768 stockholders, not one of whom owns as much as 10 per cent of the total.

There Goes the Bride by Jack Lait

HOW we gush and blurb of our most confidential thoughts and affairs when in the waiming companionship of some one pal; how comforting it is to feel that at last here is one human to whom a trust is sacred, and to whom the innermost confessions of an itching conscience may be poured forth with unqualified impunity.

And then? Comes the kick back, months or even years afterward, when the diverging courses of human events have separated the confider and the confidante so far that the chummy intimacies of the past have faded into threadbare memories, and we wonder what possessed us to ever let loose so volubly and so childishly to that particular person, of all impossible persons.

Well for us all that we do not have to take up all the tabs of friendship, love and comradeship that we have signed with such wide-eyed enthusiasm, with such gullible trust in the eternity of great good-will. How we might smile—or sneer—or shiver—or scratch the forgetting skull in doubt—or clench our hands or grind our teeth—if we could have laid before us in the form of mechanical talking-machine records all the promises we had ever made, all the protestations of unending devotion, and the blasé gab and gush of mush we have spilled when moved by emotions—emotions which seemed at that time to be epochal in our lives, and which we would have backed with a right eye as beyond the corroding depredations of time or the corrupting degeneration of fickle change.

Just such cronies had been Mildred Dryckinson and Leonie Leeson.

If ever two girls were born to meet, get "cluck" and swear they would be buddies until the crack of doom, the pair was Mildred and Leonie.

Diametrical opposites in almost every trait and feature, yet of parallel social origin and means they came in contact the first day of their first semester at the Misses Bradbury's Academy for Young Women. One glance at the assembled collection of the rich flappers matriculated for that year was proof that Mildred and Leonie would be the high spots of the outfit.

Mildred was tall and rangy, blonde and patrician, impertinent of expression, nervous, agile, spirited, mischievous, daring, precociously self-possessed.

Leonie was a soft, oval-faced, brown-eyed, cuddly little divinity, a child Madonna in mien, with soft and roly hair and a demure diffidence that radiated almost a halo about her beautiful head.

The Dryckinsons and the Leesons were families of wealth, culture and breeding, residing in two Mid-West cities, each the leading clan in its community. The girls were sixteen or thereabouts then, and they had lost all faculties to thrill over motor cars, platonic romances, Flaming X. Bushman and one cocktail. They were nice enough subjects, but they felt old, much older than they already were. There are intelligent tests which are reckoned by ages as units of measure, if there had been a temperament test by the same token, Mildred and Leonie would have rated fully twenty, and they would have shrieked in horror against cutting off the ten or twenty years beyond that at which they would have set their own stage of development.

It was as inevitable that Mildred and Leonie would share quarters in the dormitory as it was that they would be drawn by an instantaneous mutual attraction. And it wasn't a week before their rooms were the heart of the life at the Misses Bradbury's. The other girls sighed to be taken into the sisterhood and some of them were, now and then; others only hoped, like a kid without his Sunday dime before a waffleshop.

None of the others really ever wormed into the inner shrine. They were all made to feel that they were "company," and that Mildred and Leonie were still holding out those final personalities which are reserved to the elect alone. They were both inducted into the smart sorority of the academy, but the mystic and aromatic rendezvous never had the sizzling allure or the exciting atmosphere of the smart suite where Mildred and Leonie served tea (and better) and passed the cigarettes (not the perfumed sort, but the rough ones in the round pack ages, just like sailors smoke) to those who "made" the last gasp in preference at the Misses Bradbury's.

The girls' scholastic reports were terrible. Nor were they distinguished in athletics, for they both regarded it as prosaic and crude to excel at diversifications that demanded exertion. Mildred knocked out a rather snappy game at golf, and Leonie tensoned divinely when she wanted to whiff the open air enough to swing a racquet. But no school activities of the sort that make items in the school annual were remarkable for the records of Mildred or Leonie, whereas any pupil or teacher would have told you without hesitation or stuttering that they were the two most luminant personalities in the flock.

This went on through the three years at the Misses Bradbury's. In vacation times the girls visited back and forth, and the local newspapers made note, and Harlan Thomson, Mildred's earliest beau, took a tremendous interest.

Before Leonie left school she was engaged to Harlan. Mildred wasn't the early-marrying kind. Harlan meant nothing much more to her than a sort of Alfrede who had turned against his congenital guarantee as a one-woman pet. Leonie was just the sort that men wanted to marry on second sight! Mildred was more dashing, more spectacular; but Leonie was the one that suggested rose-covered cottages in Arcady and registered the serene ending of the fairy tale.

Harlan, who had all that was becoming in the way of tangible assets and potential prospects, gave Leonie the rush of her life, and proposed the night she came out. Leonie held him off and talked it over with Mildred.

"My dear," gurgled Mildred, "if you like the boy, hook him. He'll make you a nice, quiet, amiable old dear—he's a pacifist with smoking-jacket inclinations and dinner-at-home delusions. His complex is unalloyed and bovine domesticity. By all means, take him—and if you don't crown him with a creamer after a year through just sheer ennui, may you live happily ever after and name your first twins after the Misses Bradbury."

Leonie knew her Mildred. And

They all felt a coughing, uneasy something as she draped herself over the edge of the Ottoman in the den.

she knew something of her Harlan as well. Under the chestnut-haired pate, with its feminine waves and its intriguing big lights, was a brain that had not alone been given a fair shake at birth, but had been pepped up with much seeing, hearing, divining and ab-orbing.

"I'll think it over with due and comprehensive germinity, Mid," she answered, smiling. "Harlan's a rather safe sort, and that's something. When I see the way most of the married chaps extend their spheres of contact, so to say, I'm inclined to think that, whereas Harlan wouldn't be the most exhilarating sort of a honeymoon hero, still, he might wear better than most of the blasé finale-hoppers, bland rouses, bald bachelors and penetrating grass widowers of our set. Old thing. If now and again I miss in Harlan something that he might have been, I will at least have it on the rest of the brides in knowing where he might be. But I'll see."

"Rubbish, my child," puffed Mildred as she killed a cigarette that had smoldered to the monogram. "Are you still so abysmal, so anachronistic—in this age of enlightened vision and after the years you have been under my personal tuition—to think there's any kick in knowing that your husband adores you, only? You talk like a shoe clerk's only and lovesick child. Financial and social things being conveniently fixed, the only desirable consummation that I can visualize in a husband is something approximating bridge at a dollar a point—something sensational, terrifying, wrecking, you know—the whole old cat, himself!"

"After all, Mid," spoke Leonie, "it's a question of whether I really love Harlan."

"Oh, go soak your divinely proportioned head and prey for something as worth something in it as there is in it. Love! You're stepping out of your character, Miss Leeson. When you get cogitating on that chemically preposterous concoction of bones, dynamite, carbolic acid and apple sauce called love—that's just like looking for sunshine on the particular Sunday afternoon for which the Toothpick Sharpeners' Union sets its annual clam-bake. It's human enough to pray for it and want it, but who knows anything about it? If the old sun beams, fine, if it doesn't, what are you going to do about it? What you feel before marriage has about as much to do with love after marriage, as I have given it the East and West from the various grandstands in which I have spent my young life, as a Republican candidate in a New York election. Figure out every other angle, the things that answer to logic, reason and the binomial theorem of the personal equation, and trust to luck on the love gas, which is and always has to be the everlasting and unsolvable X, the unknown quantity."

"Love is an accident, and like any other miracle, should be duly appreciated when visited upon one; but anyone who has the audacity to seek it or to attempt to anticipate it, is just a chump. Leonie, my dear, you are a cute little chump. So I think that you and Harlan ought to team up great, and with careful driving and no rotten weather, should about make the matrimonial course at bogey—nothing to rave about, but not punk enough to disqualify you from the finals. Go ahead—tee off and may the wind be with you. I can tell from the tone of your eyes and the looks of your voice that you've decided to enter for the shiny tin cup of hymeneal happiness."

And it was so ordered. Mildred didn't remain for the wedding, having some important skytalking to attend to in Deauville. And by the time she had done all the peak points of Europe, Leonie was in her second full moon of rapturous bridehood.

She had decided that Harlan would like a duplex love-cote on the drive until she felt moved to open a large house and really go in for entertaining. With a few selected servants, they managed there to keep occupied with their smooching and spooning and the incidentals of sublimated serenity.

Harlan had turned out to be all that Leonie had dreamed and Mildred had threatened. Theatres, cabarets, country clubs, week-ends, all the small distractions of their set, he ignored without any interdictions—he was just completely immersed in his bride and his new estate and he wanted little more than just loafing and lounging and lolling about "the house" when he wasn't downtown in the parental offices growing up with the business.

Leonie wasn't acutely agitated with a sense of supreme intoxication over it. But she was content enough. She had seen everything and everybody that mattered, she knew that she had a long life ahead to keep up with any new curiosities that might overtake her, and Harlan was so soothing. She felt a sense of wifehood which was, of itself, a novelty, even if she did clutch her new posies sion to her heart with a consuming passion such as glorifies some girls in their realization of marriage as a grand climax, an all-else dwarfing inspiration this side of a line of demarcation between the inconsequential period before and the glorification of life after.

And then Mildred breezed in. She was outfitted, all to the Paris, churning with new impressions, a-buzz with views she had caught on the fly among the thrill-chasers and the vibration-accelerators at Monte Carlo and Carlsbad and Biarritz and those other combinations of papier mache, hot air and grand larceny that make up an itinerary on the other side.

Also, she had been away from Leonie for weeks, for the first time since their inseparable companionship had begun at the Misses Bradbury's—not only away, but with aliens and strangers; and she felt a creepy gooseflesh such as one might at meeting one's ex-husband or a sister one hadn't written to—in a long while, when she bounded in on Leonie—and her Harlan—one evening betwixt dinner and lights-out.

They were glad to see her, of course, and they would have wondered if she hadn't run in the very first day. Still they all felt a coughing, uneasy something as she draped herself over the edge of an Ottoman in the den and assured Leonie that she was looking just ravishing with the same breath that told Harlan he looked just as she'd always imagined he would when married—quitted robe, and all.

Leonie giggled an ash off her cigarette and assured Mildred that she was the smartest looking thing that had bobbed into town that season. And there was some small chaff about mutual friends' mothers and other minutia, and then into the thrice joshing which newly married folks begin to accept as an inevitable manifestation until it is worn thin and gradually disintegrates.

"You know, Harlan," piped Mildred "once in a while I catch myself thinking of Leonie as a wife—and I have a nifty little laugh all to myself."

"Why?" asked Harlan, dryly, without looking up from a magazine that had been on the table for days without a tumble. "What's particularly facetious about Leonie being a wife?"

"Oh, nothing—specific. But you know, she and I were pretty chummy—weren't we, Lee?"

"I'll say we were," assured Leonie, without very emphatic assurance. Somehow the trend of the talk didn't just enthuse her, though she wasn't afraid of anything Mildred might say.

"And what was there about you two girls being friends that makes it amusing for Leonie to be married?" asked Harlan.

"Oh, nothing—not a thing. But if you had been with her night and day, as I was, during the impressionable years at school—when we told one another everything—everything!"

"Of course we did—such silly stuff as girls confide to each other," explained Leonie.

"Oh, it wasn't so silly," persisted Mildred. "It didn't seem so at that time, anyway. We thought our secrets were mighty weighty. Like—do you remember the night we went motoring with those two country yokels in the rattly flivver after we met them on the road just past the eleventh hole? Wasn't that a lark?"

Harlan looked up from his magazine. He didn't say a word. He looked first at Mildred, who was smiling broadly as though "o gude weight to her fawed Mildred into her karchief.

point; then he turned slowly to Leonie, who was trying to smile at Mildred in a way that attempted to convey at once that it was just a hazy recollection of something all but forgotten, and that Mildred should please choke off.

"I'll never forget those poor yokels," beamed Mildred. "One of them was so smitten with Leonie that he wanted her to go apple-picking with him and said he had some cider in the barn that would make a deacon do a cakewalk. Remember, Lee?"

Harlan laid down the magazine. "You never told me of any such goings-on, Leonie," he said.

"Oh, it wasn't anything—just a harmless joke. We had a laugh over it at the time and forgot it."

"We forgot it," hurried Mildred. "But that poor plowboy that fell so hard for your Leonie didn't forget it so easily. He wrote her letters that—well, say, they'd have sold for the funny papers. And he hung around outside the fence, and—"

"Did you ever see him after—after that rather ill-advised flivver ride?" asked Harlan, in a voice that Leonie had never heard before—that she didn't know he had.

Leonie was on the point of snapping back an answer, but as she turned she saw Mildred, with lips apart, waiting for it; so she switched without throwing a semaphore and merely said:

"Oh, what does it matter? That was years ago, when we were a couple of boobs in school. You aren't going to get jealous about it—now, are you?"

"Oh, a bridegroom is a suspicious party, Lee, always," Mildred felt she had to get in.

"Not at all," snapped Harlan. "I've never for one second doubted or questioned Leonie. But I—well, it never entered my head that she would have engaged in such carryings-on."

"Oh, don't be silly," pursued Mildred. "This was perfectly innocent. You see—"

"I suppose it was. But it was in such deplorable bad taste. Is that what cultured parents send their adolescent daughters away to schools for—where they're supposed to be chaperoned and guarded against such—such foolhardy misconduct?"

Leonie rose to her slipped feet. And when Leonie rose—like that—it was time to make for the trenches, because beneath her womanly little structure of affability was a ton of T. N. T.

"Look here, Harlan—and you, Mildred," she flashed. "I'm not on the defensive here—in my own home—and I don't propose to rake over all the flapper escapades of my scarlet past. I dare say that if my husband's life were winnowed, or if he had kept a day-to-day diary, we might find somewhere a reference to a stenographer—or maybe even a chorus girl—somewhere in the chronicles of his pre-marital adventures. Now—let's change the subject. How about a highball, M?"

"Grand thought," chirped Mildred. "Always did prefer Scotch to cider, though we did get a jolt, out of that jug, didn't we?"

"Leonie," said Harlan, and he was trembling. "until this moment I had always idealized you; I had always thought of you as a high-minded, superior sort who wouldn't—who couldn't—have been so—so—let me say so frivolous, to put it politely. Of course, I married you as I found you; I have no right to search back in an ex post facto investigation of your every hour before you came into my life. But—"

"Yes," said Leonie. "But—what? Let's have it out."

"What I was about to say—when you leaped on me—which is something new in your attitude, too—was that something has gone that cannot ever come back."

"Yes? For instance?"

"That complete faith in you—I mean that unqualified conviction that you were perfect; that you just couldn't do or even ever have done anything—anything that you wouldn't do if I were looking on."

"You couldn't very conveniently have been looking on when we met those two rubes," suggested Mildred.

"I suppose not," sighed Harlan. "Perhaps it was all for the best, at that. And perhaps I'm a fool to fancy that my wife—just because she happens to be my wife, in spite of all I know about women—should be so different from the rest. But I did I was just blind enough—and happy enough."

"If you saw something about having lived in 'a fool's paradise,' I'll smash a vase," said Leonie.

"Oh—you do that, too?" moaned Harlan. "Good night."

And out he marched.

Leonie and Mildred sat looking at one another for a full second. Mildred reached over and put her hand affectionately on Leonie's.

"Did I—have I done anything?" she inquired, worriedly.

"Not a thing," answered Leonie. "Not a single thing. You bachelor girls are like Caesar's wife, except that you're a merry lot—always ready to crack a whimsy or hit off a bright weeze. You haven't done much—only chucked my life into the same whirling stew of bickerings, quarrels, jealousies, suspicions and double-crossings that go for the rest of the marriages I know of. I had hoped to forestall it—for a while at least. But now it's over the top."

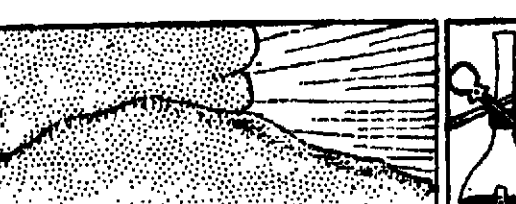

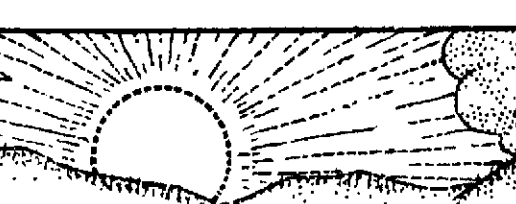

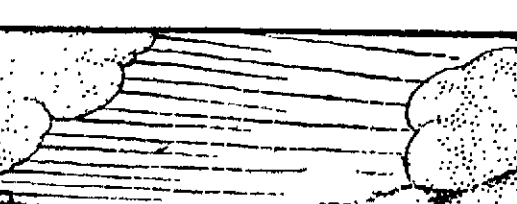

"Oh, I'm so sorry," yammered Mildred. "Perhaps I wasn't as diplomatic as I might have been—but who would ever have thought of such a thing?"

"Nobody," said Leonie, patting her arm. "Nobody—who isn't married, anyway."

"Well, I hope it all comes out all right. And it will. Harlan will be all right in the morning, I'm sure. Good night, dear—I'll run in some afternoon—when you're alone—and we'll chat over old times, eh?"

"Yes—do that," invited Leonie. "Come in and get all the old college jokes out of your system. And don't ever tell Harlan about that football player from the military academy, or he'll go off a bridge."

"Say—I'd forgotten all about that one," guffawed Leonie broadly as though "o gude weight to her fawed Mildred into her karchief.

RAIL EQUIPMENT ORDERS WILL SPUR SALES OF LUMBER

Unseasonable Activity in Industry Is Keeping Mills Behind On Orders

Though no important contracts for rolling stock have been placed by the railroads during the last week, there are numerous inquiries in circulation which aggregate a huge total, and it is expected that additional sizeable orders will be placed at any moment. The mills meanwhile are carrying on their books heavy orders for car and other railroad material which, in combination with prospects for enormous quantities of future business of the same character, make for an exceedingly busy market.

The railroads are also reported to be contemplating making heavy expenditures in improving their properties and rights of way during 1923 and their requirements appear certain to dominate the lumber market for some time.

Industrial business as a whole is unseasonably active. This is especially noticeable in the hardwood market, where furniture, automobile, flooring and interior trim, box and crating manufacturers are competing severely with a long line of miscellaneous buyers, including exporters for small stocks of dry lumber offered. The automobile industry, having in prospect an unprecedented production next year is an especially eager buyer, and in some instances is taking lumber green from the saw. Automobile concerns in Detroit alone consumed 450,000,000 feet of hardwoods this year and estimate their 1923 requirements at 550,000,000 feet, as a result of the enormous recent growth in demand for closed cars.

Where to obtain sufficient hardwood lumber to cover the needs during the impending season is a problem which agitates the buyer today. Building operations throughout the country remain unusually heavy for this time of year and retail yards are busy. These consequently are forced to buy constantly for immediate deliveries and while many are postponing purchases of spring stocks until after the inventories of a few of them are already coming into the market for material for shipment after the first of the year. This is in line with the range of authorities who see a great demand ahead with intensified stock shortage and higher prices.

The car situation has been much relieved of late, with the result that lumber shipments have risen sharply, especially in the South and, the return of normal transportation conditions is not expected for some time. A continued gradual improvement is looked for. Lumber production and orders remain very heavy for December, and optimism of the leanest variety rules the industry.

CHILD'S LETTER WINS REPRIEVE FOR DAD

White Plains—When Layton Brown who had stolen a few tires came up for sentence Judge Bleakley administered a new form of punishment by reading in open court a letter from Brown's daughter, as Brown covered his face and women sobbed.

"Dear Mr. Bleakley," the judge read aloud. "My name is Marion Brown. I am 9 years old. I have two sisters and four brothers younger than I am. My daddy's name is Layton Brown and mama says you might take daddy away for Christmas. Now daddy always brings the Christmas tree for Santa Claus and he has got to go to the hospital and get my little sister so she can see Santa Claus. Daddy took her to the hospital last September after she nearly burned to death in a bonfire. Now if I send you my picture will you be good to daddy?"

"If you have any heart the reading of this letter will be more severe than any sentence I might impose upon you," Judge Bleakley said, and suspended sentence.

Ninety-three New Free Baking Recipes

Can you make good bread? Very few people can. Are you a good enough cook to make the kind of corn bread for which the South is famous? Have you ever tried to make Boston brown bread? There isn't any trick in making these things perfectly. The Department of Agriculture has published a booklet which makes it possible for anyone. It sets forth the right way to make practically every pastry and bread.

This invaluable baking book is a free Government publication, and our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.

Same Old Fluctuation Of Prices Obsessed Public In Appleton's Early Days

Cost Of Groceries 30 Years Ago Was Surprisingly Low—Prices 60 Years Ago Were Higher On Some Things Than Now

A dollar went a long way in Appleton 30 years ago, even if it was a little harder to earn. Yet 60 years ago that same dollar, which was still harder to earn, could in some respects buy less than it does today. Both of these assertions are proved by a comparison of retail food prices of 30 years ago and a comparison of produce 60 years ago.

According to an old handbill preserved by H. G. Greeley, The Bee Hive, a grocery store operated by C. L. Putney & Co. in the west end about 30 years ago, sold sugar at 23 pounds for $1, while soap could be bought at 10 bars for 25 cents. Rice was sold at 2 pounds for 5 cents. A glance at present day market prices in Appleton shows that some articles have doubled and tripled in value, while in others there is very little difference.

SOME COMPARISONS

The comparative prices are as follows:

WHEAT HIGHER

Farmers received more for their wheat in March, 1922, than they are now receiving according to quotations printed in the Outagamie County, edited by T. H. Ryan. They received from $1.15 to $1.25 whereas they are now being paid 85 cents a bushel. Oats was sold for about the same price the farmers receive today. Pork sold for $7 and $7.50 a hundred. Beef on the hoof, however, sold for $3 a head while farmers today are getting $6 to $6.50 a hundred pounds for steers and $2.50 to $3.50 for cows. Eggs were about three times as cheap in those days, but kerosene which was beginning to replace tallow candles in those days sold for $1.40 to $1.50 a gallon.

Did You Ever Eat Buffalo Meat?

Here is an Opportunity

In pursuing our business from day to day we are always on the lookout for something to offer our customers, that is a little out of the ordinary. When we learned that we would be able to purchase a Buffalo, we realized that this would be an ideal opportunity to offer our patrons who have never tasted Buffalo meat a real treat, so we immediately placed our order for one.

From the Famous Scotty Philip's Herd of Fort Pierre S. D.

We ask all our patrons who desire a nice steak or roast from this Buffalo to place their orders with us as soon as possible, so that we may be able to give them prompt service when the Bison is cut. We wish to extend this invitation to everyone in Outagamie county whether they are our regular patrons or not.

"And so I have," replied the man. "It left me a sum of money."

"A large sum?"

"Mr. Anthony Gosford," said my father, "for what purpose did you, my father, bequeath you a large sum of money? You are no kin; nor was he in your debt."

The Englishman sat down and put his fingers together with a judicial air.

"Sir," he began, "I am not advised that the purpose of a bequest is relevant, when the bequest is direct and unencumbered by the testator with any indicative words of trust or uses. This will bequest me a sum of money I am not required by any provision of the law to show the reasons moving the testator. Doubtless, Mr. Peyton Marshall had reasons which he deemed excellent for this course, but they are, sir, entombed in the grave with him."

My father looked steadily at the man, but he did not seem to consider his explanation, nor to go any further on that line.

"Is there another who would know about this will?" he said.

"This effeminate son would know," replied Gosford, a sneer in the epithet, "but on other, Marshall wrote the testament in his own hand, with out witnesses, as he had the legal right to do under the laws of Virginia. The lawyer," he added, "Mr. Lewis, will confirm me in the legality of that."

CHAPTER II

"And now, sir," continued the Englishman, turning to my father, "we will inquire into the theft of this testament."

But my father did not appear to notice Mr. Gosford. He seemed perplexed and in some concern.

"Lewis," he said, "what is your definition of a crime?"

"It is a violation of the law," replied the lawyer.

"I do not accept your definition," said my father. "It is, rather, a violation of justice, a sneer in the epithet, 'but on other, Marshall wrote the testament in his own hand, with out witnesses, as he had the legal right to do under the laws of Virginia. The lawyer,' he added, 'Mr. Lewis, will confirm me in the legality of that.'"

"Then he seemed to remember that the Englishman was present," he said. "And now, Mr. Gosford," he said, "will you kindly ask young Marshall to come in here?"

The man would have refused, with some rejoinder, but my father was looking at him, and he could not find the courage to resist my father's will. He got up and went out, and presently returned followed by the lad and Gacki. The old country doctor sat down by the door, his leather case of bottles by the chair, his cloak still fastened under his chin. Gosford went back to the table and sat down with his writing materials to keep notes. The boy stood.

My father looked a long time at the lad. His face was grave, but when he spoke, his voice was gentle.

"My boy," he said, "I have had a good deal of experience in the examination of the devil's work." He paused, and indicated the violated room. "It is often excellently done. One's ingenuity is often taxed to trace out the evil design in it, and to stamp it as a false piece set into the natural sequence of events."

He paused again, and his big shoulders blotted out the window.

"Every natural event," he continued, "is intimately connected with innumerable events that precede and follow. It has so many serrated points of contact with other events that the human mind is not able to fit a false event so that no trace of the joiner will appear. The most skilled workman in the devil's shop is only able to give their false piece a blurred joiner."

He stopped and turned to the row of mahogany drawers beside him.

"Now, my boy," he said, "can you tell me why the one who ransacked this room, in opening and tumbling the contents of all the drawers

You Must Pay Price If You Want Figure

Movie Studio Makes Exercise Part Of Its Daily Routine Work

BY MARIAN HALE
Every woman knows that a slender, beautiful figure has its price plainly marked on the tag—correct diet and exercise.

At the United Studios, Los Angeles, film producers noticed that many of the beauties it had cost them so much trouble and money to discover were putting on weight.

So instructor Fred Cody of the Los Angeles Athletic Club was engaged. Now, every morning the bugle sounds, and from star to super, everybody lines up for drill.

HERE'S THE PROGRAM:

1. Setting-up exercises—rising slowly from a deep squat to a standing position—a good introduction to the more strenuous routine to come.
2. Skipping the rope. It increases circulation, stimulates the vital organs and strengthens the legs and arms.
3. The stretching exercise for reducing the upper trunk and hip muscles. Reach as high as possible with the right arm, letting the left hand reach the knee. Alternate and repeat rapidly.
4. The rotary exercise to reduce waist and hips. Stand erect, with arms outstretched and twist the body as far as possible to left and right.
5. The floor dip to develop the arms, shoulders and back. Lie flat down and raise and lower the trunk by straightening and bending the arms, keeping the back straight.
6. Stretching the back muscles to remove superfluous tissue about the waist. Stand upright, then bend forward and grasp the back of the ankles with the hands.
7. Kicking exercise to develop the upper leg, thigh and abdominal muscles. Keep the knee stiff.
8. An exercise to develop the abdominal and back muscles. Bend over until the tips of the fingers touch the floor, then walk backward four steps and forward four. It is difficult and only to be undertaken after the simpler exercises have been practiced for months.

DRESS HINTS

CIRCULAR FRILLS

Circular frills which sometimes extend from elbow to wrist, finish many of the season's smartest gowns. Even coats are taking up the fad and using fur for the ruffles.

NEW SWEATER STYLE

A new medium-weight sweater, made slip-over and finished at the hem with a deep cuff, has a round neck with two bands of color. College girls use their college colors for this finish.

LACE AND FUR

Fur turbans are now being very smartly draped with lace veils. Some are apt to go to any length. Some are fastened on the side with a lace cascade and others hang loose and full, sometimes almost to the waistline.

DANCING FROCK

A dancing frock, sleeveless and full skirted, is of corn-colored satin, completely covered with small iridescent beads making no attempt at design.

SILK HANDKERCHIEFS

Three-cornered silk handkerchiefs in bandanna colorings or batik effects are a popular neck finish for the sports frock. They are always gay and colorful.

Honeymooner's Abroad

Chapter 23 — Jack Flirts With Tragedy

By Zoe Beckley

As Jack heard Stanley's voice over the wire presumably from Edna's room he kicked the door of the booth open. He felt as though he were stifling.

"I want to talk to Edna," he managed.

He heard a muffled "Good Lord!" The receiver at the other end sounded as though it had fallen to the table. There was a murmur. Then in panic Edna's voice sounded: "Who is it? What do you want?"

Gently Jack replaced his own receiver on the hook.

From the booth he went to the clerk's desk and arranged to take the first train for Paris. Then he went upstairs to pack. He had completely forgotten Nella and she was content to be forgotten for the time. Jack packed deliberately, with an absence of hurry that had something menacing about it. It was only when he came to the revolver in its nest among his handkerchiefs that a violent spasm of emotion passed over him. Then he packed this in his bag, too, and his cold methodical manner came back.

His telephone rang.

"Long distance, sir. Hold the wire," the operator said.

Jack's hand, as he held the receiver, for the first time trembled. Edna's voice came over the wire.

"Jack, dearest, was that you on the phone a while ago?"

"Yes."

"Good God, Jack! Why do you—what is the matter, dear? I can't recognize your tone at all. Is there anything wrong?"

He took a long time to answer. It seemed to him as though on his next words hung the fate of their marriage. Either the woman downstairs was lying, or—Edna was a most accomplished—hellishly accomplished—actress.

It seemed to Jack as though his heart had risen to his throat and was pounding, swelling there, suffocating him. There was a dazzle before his eyes. He struggled for breath—for sanity—for faith.

"Speak to me, Jack!" Edna's voice was almost a scream.

It was only with the most terrific effort that Jack succeeded at last.

"Edna, I'm all right. And I am sure you are. I shan't say anything just now. Later I'll ring you again. I must run down to see someone at once. So long—dearest!"

But when he got downstairs Nella was gone. She was no fool. She had seen his face in time to escape. Then Jack got into his coat and calling a taxicab gave the chauffeur the name of the hotel at which Cousins was staying.

GOOD MANNERS

For a first formal call, 15 to 20 minutes is about the right time to stay. Later calls may be extended to 45 minutes. A friendly call may last an hour, even an hour and a half. Calls of inquiry, information or condolence never should be prolonged beyond the necessities of the purpose for which they are made.

Adventures Of The Twins

Thistle-Patch Fairy

After the donkey had run away and left poor Nancy and Nick lying right in the midst of a big field of thorny thistles they scrambled to their feet and looked around.

The thorns tore their clothes and pricked their feet and held them back like a hundred hands.

"Goodness!" gasped Nancy, "we'll never get out of here."

"Let's wish," said Nick quickly. "Our Green Shoes can take us anywhere."

But lo and behold, when they wished, not even the magic shoes could move. For the thorn held them tight, too.

"I believe that bad donkey brought us here on purpose and dumped us off," declared Nancy indignantly. She didn't know how right she was, for Hee Haw, the donkey, was Flap-Doodle himself, the very fairy the children were hunting. Yes, sir! He had taken the Fairy Queen's wand he had stolen and turned himself right into a donkey.

Why, at that minute he was laughing fit to kill at the way he had gotten rid of the Twins who insisted on following him in order to get the magic wand.

"Ha, ha!" They'll have to stay there forever," he chuckled, flapping his great ridiculous ears with delight.

But something was going on he didn't know about.

As Nancy and Nick stood looking helplessly about, along came a jolly fairy in a rubber suit, right through the thistle patch. He was wheeling a wheelbarrow and sinking merrily.

"Hello, boys!" he cried. "Who are you? In the thistle patch fairy. I gather thistle down for fairy pillows."

When he heard their story, he lifted them both into his wheelbarrow and saved them.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

The bride of Ceylon often wears a fantastic make-up on her wedding day. The eyebrows are widened with indigo. The cheekbones, chin and throat are painted similarly in tiny flower and scrollwork designs. Then, over the brows, a line of goldleaf is laid.

Only for her first marriage is a woman so decorated.

USE OF COLOR

New collar and cuff sets of linen, batiste, or organdie, are embroidered with wool or silk in Persian or peasant colorings. Vestees, too, are more popular in colored than in plain embroidery.

LEATHER AND FUR

Short jackets of caracul are made smart and jaunty by belts and straps about the collars and cuffs of leather—usually of bright red or royal blue. Frequently a leather hat matches the coat trimming.

SMART BAGS MAKE ATTRACTIVE PRESENTS

The diligent needle-woman, looking about for unusual patterns and attractive designs for Christmas presents, will be pleased with these bags.

With time and patience she may make them of beaded silks—they are not so complicated as they look. The flat purse, dangling from the rack, is especially smart in black moire with cut steel beads.

Jet, cut steel, crystal and iridescent beads are the fashionable varieties, and moire, duvetyne and brocades are the preferred materials. Bags of fabric with beads for trimmings are rather more in favor than those of solid headwork.

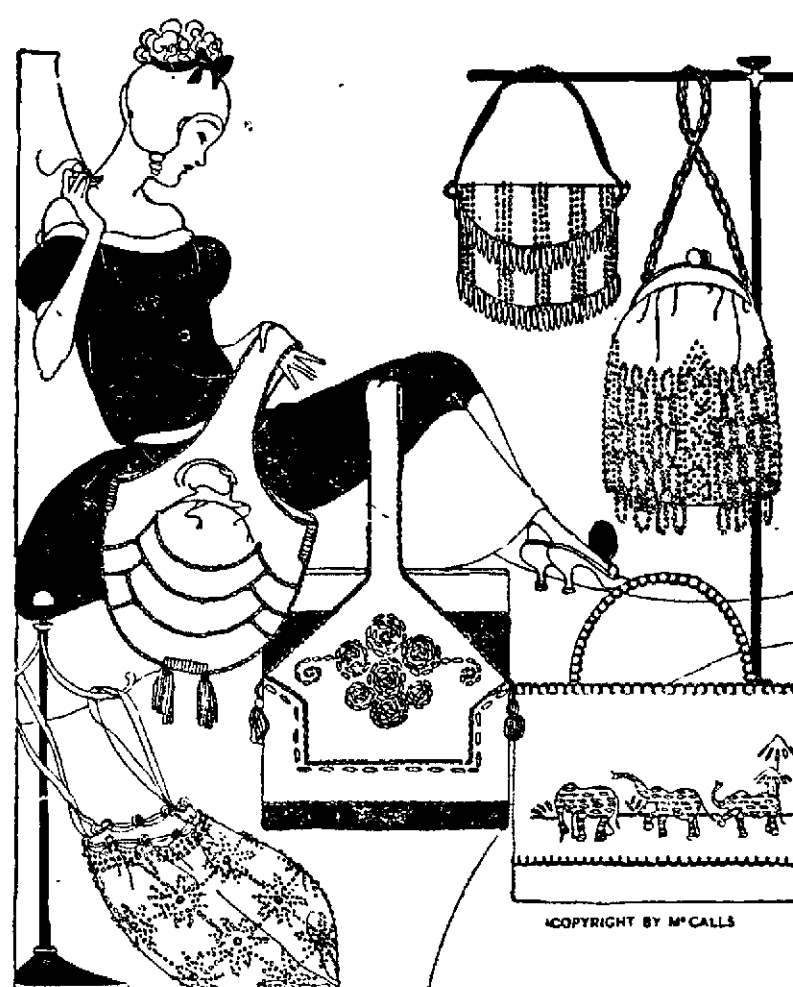

Bags for shopping, sewing or knitting are illustrated, too. These are made of heavy fabrics in plain colors and trimmed with designs in the simplest of embroidery stitches.

The center bag can be made striking with materials of contrasting colors.

The bag to the left offers an incredibly thin and sweet gazelle as its ornamentation.

Dancing elephants decorate the third.

There are countless other designs to be found in transfer patterns and art embroidery departments.

TESTED RECIPES

CASSEROLE OF LAMB

By Bertha E. Stanleigh

- 2 lbs. fore quarter lamb
3 tablespoons bacon fat or dripping
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups stock or 1 cup water
1 cup tomato
1/2 cup carrot strips
1/2 cup small onions
1/2 cup turnip cubes
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
- Wipe and cut the lean part of the lamb from fat and bone. Place bones in 3 cups cold water and cook as long a time as possible. This is the liquid called "stock" in the above recipe.

Cut the lean meat in small pieces and fry until brown in the fat. Place the fried meat in a casserole. To fat remaining in pan, add flour and brown; then add stock and cook until smooth and thickened. Strain over the meat in casserole.

Parboil for 10 minutes the carrot, turnip and onions. Add to casserole, season with salt and pepper, cover and cook in oven one hour. Serve in casserole.

SPANISH FRICASSEE OF CHICKEN

- 1 chicken or young fowl, cut in pieces for serving 1/2 cup bacon dice or 1/4 cup olive oil
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons paprika
1 onion, medium sized
1 clove garlic
1 green pepper
2 cups tomato
2 quarts water
1 cup rice (well washed)

Sprinkle the pieces of chicken with the paprika and fry in the bacon fat or oil until nicely browned. In remaining fat, fry the onion, thinly sliced; the garlic, finely cut, the green pepper, cut in strips, and the rice. When rice is yellow, place all with the chicken in a kettle, add water and tomato and cook slowly until chicken is tender and rice is soft. In serving, turn rice on to platter, and on it lay the pieces of chicken. The rice will take up the liquid, leaving just enough to make it moist.

Note: The quantities of salt and pepper may not be sufficient. Always season more to taste.

METAL CLOTH GOWNS

Metal cloth gowns continue to be the rage and grow more elaborate as the season advances. Frequently the effect of gorgeousness is enhanced by borders of fur—sable being the most effective.

COLORS LINGERIE

Lingerie is quite as apt to be black, brown or navy blue these days as it is to be flesh-colored or white. With dark dresses many women prefer lingerie that matches.

Dayton Acts To Save Lives Of Its Babies

BY MARIAN HALE

Dayton, O., has cut its infant death rate almost 40 per cent in the past 10 years.

It has exchanged one of the country's highest death rates for one of the lowest.

In 1912, out of 2588 births in Dayton there were 296 deaths, or 114.3 per 1000. In 1921, out of 3156 births there were 234 deaths, or 74.7 per 1000. This year it is expected the rate will be as low as 86 per 1000.

HOW IT WAS DONE

Dr. A. O. Peters, commissioner of health, under whose administration the improvement was wrought, attributes it to two agencies in particular.

1. Prenatal work among mothers through the department of public health nursing.

2. Improvement of Dayton's milk supply.

Every expectant mother is urged to report her condition to the public health nurse in her district, that she may learn how to care for herself before the baby comes and for the infant after it is born.

GETS INTELLIGENT CARE

This system insures mothers intelligent care from the start and relieves them of much of the anxiety and fear which harasses too many, especially in the case of their first born.

As a preliminary to the pure milk campaign, all milk stations were abandoned, all dealers were investigated and the issuance of monthly bulletins, showing their respective standings, was instituted.

Also, each year a child welfare campaign is conducted, during which every baby receives a thorough examination.

A copy of the results of each examination is given to the parents.

On it is a statement of any physical defects discovered. All abnormal measurements are noted. If necessary, parents are urged to consult the family physician at once.

Even though no defects of consequence are discovered, information is obtained which may serve as a basis for invaluable future comparisons.

In two weeks last June, 1657 babies were examined. The point was emphasized that most baby ills can be prevented with proper care.

A monthly bulletin, which every mother may have for the asking, is issued by the health department. This bulletin contains the latest health statistics, the most up-to-date hints concerning the combating of

LEGAL NOTICES

STATE OF WISCONSIN, In Circuit Court for Outagamie County.

Margaret Rausch, plaintiff, vs. Fred Kesselring & Frieda Kesselring, his wife, defendants.

NOTICE OF SALE

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue and in pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale rendered and entered in the above entitled action on the 14th day of November, 1921, and which judgment was docketed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in and for said county on the last mentioned day, I, the undersigned sheriff of Outagamie county, Wisconsin, will sell to the highest and best bidder for cash, at the east door of the court house in the city of Appleton, Outagamie county, Wisconsin, on the 10th day of January, 1922, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the real estate and mortgaged premises directed by said judgment to be sold to satisfy the amount adjudged in said judgment, the plaintiff for the principal interest, costs and subsequent costs, to-wit:

The southwest quarter (S. W. 1/4) of the northeast quarter (N. E. 1/4) and the southeast quarter (S. E. 1/4), all of this land lying in section Fourteen (Sec. 14) township Twenty-four (T. 24), range sixteen (R. 16), east and con-

WANTS SYSTEM OF AUTO SAFETY FOR U. S. AND CANADA

Local And State Laws Confuse Motorists, New York Policeman Says

Special to Post-Crescent

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"Uniform traffic laws for the United States and Canada—subject to minor local modifications—are one of the big necessities for checking the growing menace of the automobile accident toll.

This is the view of Deputy Inspector John W. O'Connor of the New York police department, who recently resigned as president of the International Traffic Officers' Association.

"The automobile has brought into practice interstate, intercity, and even international touring," says O'Connor. "A result of conflicting laws in nearly every state and city they visit, these tourists are often inoperably involved in serious accidents. They drive according to the regulations of their home state—and find out too late that these rules do not apply in other localities.

"Rules of the road, regulations on passing vehicles, street cars and similar general regulations could be standardized, and should be, in the interests of safety."

Inspector O'Connor sees in education for both motorist and pedestrian in safety principles and practices as the first rule to be followed in any campaign to reduce accidents.

"Part of the solution of the traffic problem," he explains, "rests in concise, simple and just regulation; in publicity of these regulations and in strict enforcement of the law.

"The education of drivers and pedestrians is the first and most important step. If this principle is followed the work of the police will be that of prompters and assistants rather than enforcers.

"Once drivers and pedestrians know their rights, they will become their own regulators, as they will resent the infractions of the constantly diminishing number of enforcers."

19,396 PERSONS DIE IN INDIA FROM SNAKE BITES

By Associated Press

London—According to statistics received from India, 3,360 persons were killed by wild animals in British India during 1921 against 3,633 in the previous year.

Tigers were responsible for 1,454 deaths, leopards for 560, wolves for 556, bears for 69, elephants for 70 and hyenas for 10. The loss of human life from snake bites fell from 20,043 in 1920 to 12,336 in 1921.

ing proportion of people who try to override the rights of others."

SUGGESTS REMEDIES

Besides this advice O'Connor has formulated the following remedies for traffic control:

1. Uniform traffic laws and display signs throughout the United States and Canada, subject to minor local modifications.
2. Jail sentences for second offenders against speed and other safety regulations.
3. Night examinations throughout the United States of all drivers, both as to their knowledge of traffic laws and their competence as motor vehicle operators.
4. Full support of traffic courts in aiding police to enforce the laws.
5. Establishment of citizens' complaint bureaus so that citizens may conveniently report violations and establishment of police accident investigation bureaus to search out the causes of all accidents.
6. General action of efficient safety devices and appliances.

GOOD FELLOW'S HONOR ROLL

The Honor Roll of Good Fellows was given quite a boost today. It was a great pleasure to list the names of men and women whose hearts have been touched by the distress that surrounds them. It must have been a satisfaction to those Good Fellows to make their contributions. No other gift will give them as great a thrill as helping those who cannot help themselves.

The time for closing this Honor Roll is drawing near. Christmas is only a few days off. Those of you whose names are not on this list must hurry if you wish the distinction of being a Good Fellow. No greater title can be bestowed upon you.

For the sake of the sick, the destitute, and their children, hurry along your contribution to the Good Fellow Club. Add your name to the list printed below.

Radio Carries Yuletide Greetings Across Pacific

There are many ways of sending Christmas greetings, some that are old and some that are quite new but this season Appleton people have been given an opportunity to send them in an entirely new manner. Radio was the means.

Harvey Younger of the electrical department of Langstadt-Meyer with Dallas Jansen, their radio man are sending Christmas greetings for Appleton persons who desire to do so. They are sending the messages as a special Yuletide feature and have set as the quota fifty messages.

The greetings will go by radio to the receiving station nearest the persons to whom they are addressed and then will complete the journey by mail just as fast as they can be hurried through. In some places there will be receiving stations in the city to which they have been sent and in others the message may have to go 25 or more miles by mail.

By Tuesday afternoon nearly fifty greetings had been turned in at Langstadt-Meyer office. Greetings have been addressed to Alaska, Canada, the western states, and southern states. A few messages have been sent east but a few more are wanted to go in that direction.

The message which will probably go the farthest has been sent to E. L. Ford in Foochow, China, brother of W. S. Ford, Appleton, of the vocation at school. The greeting will go by radio as far as Honolulu and from there be sent through as quickly as possible by mail. The reason it will not go straight to China is because the Chinese government has not as yet allowed the use of radio. The nearest places receiving messages are Milwaukee and Chicago.

The greetings cannot be over ten words so a number that have come in have been reduced slightly. The messages range from a "Very Merry Christmas and a Bright Happy New Year" to merely the "Season's Greetings."

Mr. Jansen was up until 4 o'clock Tuesday morning sending greetings through and was in connection with receiving stations on the Atlantic coast and on the western coast.

Mrs. Thomas Behnke of Evansville, who has been seriously ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jens, 822 Wilmelagost, is slowly recovering.

The Economy Basement Men's Section Has Staged a Christmas SALE of Men's and Boys' Sweaters

ONE THIRD and ONE HALF Under Price

One of Chicago's best known firms let us "in" on a great bargain last week—a CLOSEOUT STOCK OF MEN'S AND BOYS' APPAREL. This is the largest purchase of this type of merchandise that we have ever attempted. Such a great quantity was involved that we secured the GREATEST VALUES OF THE YEAR in the men's section. The prices quoted are a THIRD TO A HALF LESS than regular quotations.

The sweaters are made of the finest yarns—the greater part are of pure wool. The colors are good—there are all sizes. They are very warm. The styles are new and smart. Every man and boy will prize a sweater as a Christmas Gift. Weights for the coldest outdoor wear are offered as well as lighter styles for indoor use. The quantities are large—plenty for everybody. Sale starts at nine o'clock tomorrow.

Men's Heavy Wool Sweaters—$2.98

The popular pull-over and coat styles are shown. These sweaters are made of heavy wools—in shades of navy, brown, grey, maroon and heather. All sizes. Extra sale values at only $2.98.

Men's Sleeveless Khaki Sweaters—39c—79c

These sweaters are very warm—and are intended to be worn under the coat, for they are sleeveless. The styles are similar to the sweaters used in the army. Khaki color. Two qualities—extra sale values at 39c and 79c.

Men's Fine Wool Sweaters $4.29—$4.98

Splendid grade wool sweaters in pull-over and coat styles. They are shown in a wide range of colors—including white, khaki, seal, heather, grey, blue, Kelly, etc. Extra sale values at only $4.29 and $4.98.

Men's Cotton Jersey Sweaters—79c

These sweaters are a warm weight and come in attractive shades of brown, navy, and maroon. This style has the elastic knit standing turn-over collar. The quality will give very good wear. Extra sale values at only 79c.

Men's Wool Jumbo Knit Sweaters—$6.95

An extra warm heavy all wool Jumbo knit sweater that will defy any temperature. There are attractive plain shades and also combinations of colors. All sizes. Extra sale values at only $6.95.

Men's Wool Mixed Jerseys $1.69 and $1.98

Wool mixed jersey sweaters of fancy worsted for men are shown in all sizes and a full range of colors. Such a sweater has so many uses and is so comfortable that it is very popular with men. Two qualities—extra values at $1.69 and $1.98.

Three Lots--- Men's Flannel Shirts

LOT NUMBER 1—sixty high grade men's flannel shirts in both light and heavy weights and assorted colors. These shirts are very well made and come in all sizes. Extra sale values at only $2.75

LOT NUMBER 2—men's flannel shirts in grey, khaki and brown. These shirts are fully reinforced—have two pockets, and good buttons. All sizes. Extra sale values at only $2.19

LOT NUMBER 3—boys' flannel shirts of a very desirable winter weight. They come in a selection of green, grey, khaki and brown. These shirts will wear very well. All sizes. Extra sale values at only $1.39

Two Lots Boy's Flannel Shirts

LOT NUMBER 1—14 boys' flannel shirts of heavy weight and fully reinforced at all wearing points. A boy will get splendid service from this quality. Choice of khaki and grey in all sizes. Extra sale values at only $1.89

LOT NUMBER 2—boys' flannel shirts in assorted styles and colors. These shirts are well made and a very durable quality. All sizes. Extra sale values at only 98c

Special--- Men's Combination Jumbo Knit Sweaters and Fine Grade Leather Jerkin $9.19

An ideal winter combination for men comes at this extraordinarily low price. Everybody knows how warm a leather jerkin is—but it has no sleeves. Think how a sweater underneath would feel.

The Sweater

The sweaters are the heavy Jumbo knit—the warmest kind. They are coat style and may be worn without the jerkin whenever desired. There is a wide range of plain colors and combinations to choose from. The sweaters have large storm collar, two pockets, and button up the front—coat style.

The Jerkin

The sleeveless leather jerkin is made of fine brown leather—blanket lined. It is very warm and especially adapted for sport use and for men who are out of doors a great deal. These jerkins are windproof—and are full length. These combination sets come in all sizes. There are just thirty of them—a splendid gift for a man. The sale price is only $9.19.

Boys' Sweaters

Wool and Wool-Mixed $2.79

These sweaters are cut full and comfortably for the active boy. They come in pure wool and in wool mixtures—all fine quality yarn. There are pull-over and coat styles in every shade. Extra sale values at only $2.79.

Jumbo Knits—$3.19

Jumbo knit sweaters in heavy weights will give the very strongest wear. These sweaters have big collars—in the pull-over style. Choice of grey, maroon and navy—all sizes. Extra sale values at only $3.19.

Finest Wools—$3.98, $4.69

The finest wool sweaters for boys are in this lot. There are various styles—some in rich plain colors; others with band stripes that boys like. All weaves and either coat or pull-over styles are shown. Extra values at $3.98 and $4.69.
